"History is philosophy teaching by examples." Here are examples—But you must supply your own philosophy.

Somewhere yesterday a great book, that future ages will acclaim, was published, somewhere a marvelous surgical operation was performed, somewhere a noble deed was done—but Trudie Ederle gets the big headlines by swimming the English channel. So, after all, "Your fame shall (spite of prov-erbs) make it plain To write in water's not to write in vain."

A Prince Georges county law permitting residents to own one quart of liquor a month secures the acquittal of two gentlemen who were in bad. Well, one county seems to have hit on a happy interpretation of the Volstead act.

When Hero duelt at Sestos—this tale is hardly news—Leander's favorite song was called "The Dardanella Blues."

All day he yearned and burned to see the sunshine of her smiles, And every night this ardent wight would swim three measly miles.

Ovid wrote a poem all about the noble chap, Then Byron swam the Hellespont—one more romantic asp! And Cook has still got Abydos upon the tourists' map.

A New York girl still in her teens swims the equivalent of seven Hellesponts, and then some, but there's an element of romance lacking that leaves us cold—in a week you'll think that Gertrude Ederle was the girl who beat Helen Wills at tennis, but you won't forget Hero and Leander.

President Coolidge hoes his own row, but every time he goes into the garden to dig he isn't after potatoes. Those smart reporters might have known he was getting ready to go a-fishing.

The Knights of Columbus and the Ku Klux Klan are going to read Secretary Kellogg's oil note to Mexico today upside down and crossways.

So many people now hold the United States Senate in contempt that it is feared it may be impossible by December to get an impartial jury to try all those cases.

The Canton authorities appear to have modeled their murder investigations after the Hall-Mills case.

Representative Johnson, of Kentucky, decides to quit after 20 years of office-holding in Congress. So now we know the origin of that quaint old phrase, "Rare Ben Johnson."

This hot spell has lasted now just about as long as we're going to stand it. "Are five nights warmer than one night, then?" asked Alice. "Five times as warm, of course," explained the Red Queen.

They didn't want to let Trudie land in Dover—it seems the swim over without her passport in her hand. And yet 'tis claimed the British have no sense of humor.

We have never swum the English channel, but we have crossed under conditions which made us seriously consider it.

If Frenchmen knew anything about draw poker Poincare would see Uncle Sam's debt settlement and raise him a couple of reservations. Maybe Bill Borah hasn't got anything but a pair of nine spots.

The Republican Old Guard of Iowa run the steam roller over Wildman Brookhart, and crack the steam roller.

We suppose the French merchants who've been caught by the rise of the franc are taking it out in boots.

And we used to think "hoot mon" was Scotch.

The Knights of Pythias are thinking of establishing their international headquarters in Washington. There's no place like home.

Pop Ederle cleans up $175,000 on Trudie's record-breaking channel swim. It's a wise father who has faith in his own children.

Gentleman dashing madly across Pennsylvania avenue knocks a messenger boy off his bicycle and the police fail to get his name. The hit-and-run pedestrian is quite a timely novelty in a dull summer.

"Cal was a student," explain the President's boyhood friends who are still tilling the soil around Plymouth. "He always went to school and didn't play or fish." That's why he is able to do both now.

RELIGIOUS CONTEST NOW AN ENDURANCE TEST FOR MEXICANS

Strength and Probable Length of Boycott Worry Business.

CLASHES KILL DOZEN, EPISCOPATE LEARNS

Government Propaganda Is More Active—Archbishop Is Ill of Fever.

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Both sides to the religious controversy in Mexico, the efforts of peace intermediaries having been unavailing, apparently are prepared for an indefinite endurance contest.

The propaganda campaign is being continued, but it is more apparent on the side of the government supporters who, under the leadership of the regional confederation of labor and political groups are touring the nation, addressing the men and women of the country that the government's attitude is the proper one.

The newspapers are extremely cautious. They do not touch on the religious situation editorially, and print only meagre news items, the proprietors fearing arrest or closure of their plants.

About a dozen persons have been killed in recent clashes in various parts of the republic growing from the religious situation, according to reports received by the Mexican episcopate.

The episcopate's information is that five Catholic civilians and several soldiers were killed at Guadalupe Tuesday in a battle in front of a church which federal troops were occupying; that two persons were killed and another was wounded outside the Church of Jesus at Guadalupe in a clash between Catholics and police.

At Tlaloma, a small town near Guadalupe, there was a similar clash in which several persons were killed, but no details are given. In another village, Covilla, it is reported that a crowd killed the district judge who was attempting to make an inventory of the treasures of the parish church.

Catholics Quit Debates.

Catholic leaders have announced that they would not have a representative tonight at the Mexico City theater when a government supporter talked on the religious question. Heretofore these debates have been drawing great crowds, government officials and leading Catholics presenting their respective arguments, and the government broadcasting the speeches of both sides.

It is understood that the decision of the Catholic leaders not to debate tonight was taken because of the belief that the debates might lead to clashes. Government representatives spoke, nevertheless, the "debate" becoming merely a presentation of the government's side.

Business Men Complain.

General speculation is centering on how long the economic boycott, designed by the League for the Defense of Religious Freedom, can continue, and how serious it can become. From many sections of the republic, reports have come in that Catholics are making only the minimum necessary purchases.

Alienation Suit Filed Based on Statistics

New York, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—A printer with a gift for statistics filed suit today against George Ephraim, Chicago architect, asking $26,520 alienation of affection damages. In a long affidavit, John J. Killian, the printer, explained that he had arrived at the odd amount of damages by a computation based on his wife's salary and her expectation of life as figured by her insurance company.

Killian obtained a warrant of attachment against $15,500 security Ephraim was said to have in a New York bank.

Cities in California Feel Sharp Quakes

Ventura, Calif., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—A sharp earthquake lasting nearly a half minute occurred at 9:43 o'clock this morning. No damage was reported.

Santa Barbara, Calif., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—A sharp earthquake shock was felt here at 9:41 this morning. No damage was done.

NO MEXICAN OFFENSES REPORTED TO COOLIDGE

President Sees No Grounds for Interfering; Kellogg May Have Data.

UNAWARE OF K. C. ACTION

Special to The Washington Post.

Woodstock, Vt., Aug. 6.—President Coolidge, who is watching with considerable concern the struggle between church and state in Mexico, is not advised that there are grounds warranting intervention by the American government.

News of the action of the supreme council of the Knights of Columbus at its Philadelphia convention demanding intervention had not reached the President before the regular semiweekly press conference this afternoon. It therefore was without specific reference to the Knights of Columbus resolutions that Mr. Coolidge defined the attitude of the administration on the upheaval in Mexico.

The Knights of Columbus accuse the Mexican government of having "insulted, degraded and expelled American citizens, men and women, under circumstances that are abhorrent to our conception of constitutional government," and call on President Coolidge to "put an end to this ignominious contempt that has been shown by President Calles for American appeal."

Mr. Coolidge explained that no reports of offenses against Americans in the contest between church and state in Mexico had reached him, although such protests might have been lodged with the State Department.

All that concerns the United States, the President emphasized, is the safety and rights of American citizens in Mexico. The altercation between the church and the Mexican government is a purely Mexican domestic matter and none of our business, he holds. No nation has any right under international law, he believes, to interfere in that affair.

If, however, it should appear that any American citizen had suffered injury or loss of property or other rights in violation of our treaties with Mexico, then only would our government be warranted in intervening. What form that intervention would take would depend on circumstances.

Ship Off Bermuda Sends Distress Call

New York, Aug. 6 (By A. P.). The naval communications bureau tonight reported the receipt of an S O S call from the steamer Antonio, somewhere off Bermuda. All broadcasting stations were ordered shut down until definite location of the distressed vessel could be established.

The Antonio, a British vessel of 3,168 net tons, sailed from Hampton Roads August 3, for St. Vincent, Cape Verde. A gale of hurricane proportions was sweeping Bermuda today.

DAVID W. STEWART NOMINEE OF G. O. P. FOR CUMMINS' SEAT

Brookhart Forces Beaten in Selection of Late Chief's Successor.

SIOUX CITY ATTORNEY BACKED BY OLD GUARD

Party War Renewed as Insurgent Is Humbled; No Democratic Opposition.

Special to The Washington Post.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 6.—The Republican old guard of Iowa kept faith today to the memory of its fallen leader, the late Senator Albert B. Cummins, and nominated one of his loyal followers to finish his unexpired term in the United States Senate.

David Wallace Stewart, Sioux City lawyer and a hard-boiled top sergeant in Smedley Butler's regiment of marines during the world war, is the nominee. He is 39 years old.

With little attempt to conceal its bitterness against Smith W. Brookhart, the G. O. P. old guard completely routed the Brookhart forces in today's convention. Brookhart, who beat Cummins for renomination in the June primaries for the regular Senate term, was a candidate also for the short-term vacancy.

Compromise Falls.

Iowa's apostle of Republican insurgency, twice elected to the Senate, once unseated and again nominated under the G. O. P. banner last June, was unwilling to compromise with the old guard today and let it nominate a Cummins follower uncontested. So the old guardmen set their jaws, tore up the peace treaty made with Brookhart only two weeks ago in the State convention here, and put their old steam roller in motion.

It was sentiment and a sense of loyalty to the venerable Cummins, who was buried only a week ago, as much as anything that made the old guard stand pat. But the peace that descended on the Republican party in Iowa two weeks ago has departed.

There was never a doubt about Brookhart's ultimate defeat. It came on the fourth ballot in a veritable stampede for Stewart. With 693 votes, a majority necessary to nominate, Stewart received 884 and county delegates were still striving to change their votes for him when Chairman Dan Turner clanged his gavel and announced the vote amid wild confusion.

Insurgent Humbled.

Brookhart's high vote, 371½, came on the third ballot, the first roll call being informal. Favorite sons were supported on the first three ballots by the old guard, who felt safe in dividing their strength. It was merely a question of which Cummins man could pile up the most votes.

Prince's Paris Stay Displeases Royalty

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Prince Higashi-Kuni, husband of Princess Toshiko, youngest daughter of the late Emperor Meiji, is reported to have incurred the displeasure of the imperial household because of disinclination to return to Japan after residing in Paris more than five years. The prince went to Paris in 1920 to "study tactics."

The princess, with their two children, resides in Tokyo. Recently two friends of the prince, said to have been sent to Paris with orders from the imperial household for the absence to return, reported that his highness liked France so well that he was uncertain when he would return to Japan.

RULING BY M'CARL REMOVES OBSTACLE IN PARK PURCHASES

25 Per Cent Restriction Voided in High Jury Condemnations.

BUYING OF SCHOOL SITES ALSO AFFECTED

Comptroller's Decision Follows Appeal by Capital Planning Commission.

The legal rocks on which the park development and school site purchasing programs of the National Capital park and planning commission and the District commissioners threatened to founder have been cleared away by Comptroller General McCarl, it was learned yesterday.

The comptroller general is understood to have ruled that the commission may pay more than 25 per cent over the assessed value of land wanted for park purposes when a higher value is fixed by a jury award in condemnation proceedings.

Whether it might pay more than 25 per cent beyond the assessed value when a higher price results from condemnation proceedings was asked of the comptroller general by the commission when it was discovered after considerable negotiations for land that three-fourths of its funds were useless because of the 25 per cent restriction which Congress had hedged about the $450,000 of the $600,000 appropriated for park purchases this year.

Affects School Program.

While the decision of Mr. McCarl will deal with the park lands, it will have an equally vital effect on the school building program this and next year, because the same restriction on price was placed on school site purchases as was laid on park land purchases.

The result has been that the school site purchasing program, like the park program, has been brought almost to a complete halt. Inasmuch as both park and school site purchase prices are affected by the same restriction, the park decision is expected to apply also to schools.

The language of the appropriation act, limiting the purchase price, follows: "Provided, That the purchase price to be paid for any site shall not exceed the latest full-value assessment of such property plus 25 per centum of such assessed value."

Formal Announcement Awaited.

Formal announcement of the decision of the comptroller general has not been made, and officials of the commission are waiting for the formal announcement.

2 Killed, 56 Injured As Boiler Explodes

Ashtabula, Ohio, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Engineer William Coyne and Fireman W. J. Quinn, both of Youngstown, were killed, 56 men were so badly injured they were taken to a hospital and 50 others suffered lesser injuries when the boiler of a New York Central freight train locomotive exploded here today.

The explosion occurred opposite the plant of the American Fork and Hoe Co., where the injured were employed. The injured were cut by flying glass and other debris.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING IN AIRPLANE CRASHES

Rantoul, Ill., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—One flier was killed at Chanute field here today and another, who flew to his assistance, crashed down beside him, receiving injuries expected to prove fatal.

First Lieut. C. E. Partridge, Chicago, was flying at a height of 500 feet when his biplane went into a tail spin and fell. Flying Cadet Harold C. Wilson, of Seltrid field, Michigan, flew his plane to Partridge's assistance, went into a side slip at the same place and altitude and crashed less than 150 yards away. Wilson was taken from the wreckage unconscious. Partridge was dead when extricated. Lieut. J. R. Wolf, Chicago, Wilson's passenger, was injured seriously.

Both Partridge and Wolf were reserve officers, here for their two weeks' summer training.

3 NATIONS MAKE THREAT OF BULGARIAN INVASION

Jugoslavia, Roumania and Greece, in Identical Notes, Demand Raids Cease.

TO BE DELIVERED TODAY

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Vienna, Aug. 6.—Three ultimatums of identical wording will be delivered at Sofia to the Bulgarian government tomorrow by the ministers of Jugoslavia, Roumania and Greece. The three states demand that the Bulgarian government prevent the raids of the comitadjis, disband the Macedonian organization and take measures to secure the safety of the frontiers.

Should the demands not be complied with, the Jugoslavian Roumanian and Greek forces will invade Bulgarian territory. This information was received by the Belgrade newspaper Vreme, which is supposed to be in close touch with the Jugoslavian foreign office.

This probably is the strongest and most belligerent note addressed to any European power since the world war. In an official communique Foreign Minister Marko Nitichitch tried to mitigate the reports about the ultimatum.

U. S. SENDS NEW NOTE TO MEXICO ON OIL LANDS

Communication Is Believed to Be Final Word With Republic on Laws.

IGNORES RELIGIOUS CRISIS

(By the Associated Press.)

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Ambassador Sheffield has delivered a new United States note with reference to Mexico's petroleum and land laws to the Mexican foreign office, it was learned today from circles close to the foreign office.

The American embassy has refused to affirm or deny the existence of the note. In well-informed circles, it is believed that a revival of the discussion may mark the last word of the United States before the departure of Ambassador Sheffield on August 13 for a vacation in the United States. It is thought that the purpose of the note is to get the final cards on the table to put the Ambassador in a position to take up the matter with President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg.

State Department officials refused yesterday to comment on the most recent communication sent to Mexico City in connection with the prolonged diplomatic discussion of the new Mexican petroleum and land laws. It had been expected for some time, however, that the department would forward such a communication to be presented at the Mexican foreign office by Ambassador Sheffield.

14 HOURS, 34 MINUTES FROM SHORE TO SHORE

End of Journey Made in Glare of Lights, While Big Crowd Applauds.

By JULIA HARPMAN. (Special Cable Dispatch.)

Dover, England, Aug. 6.—The world's champion woman swimmer is a champion of both sexes tonight.

When gay, sturdy, young Gertrude Ederle romped ashore on Kings Down beach, the focal point of many searchlights, at 9:39 o'clock tonight, she had established a world's record for the torturing English channel swim by but one minute less than two hours.

She is the first woman to accomplish the crossing of the cold, whirling-tides, rough waters of the Straits of Dover. And she had performed the grueling feat in 14 hours and 34 minutes under almost the most adverse conditions possible at this season, beating the previous record of 16 hours and 33 minutes hung up by Enrico Tira-boschi, the Argentinean, in 1923.

Of the many scores of swimmers who have attempted the spanning of the 21 miles of sea that separate France and England, she is the sixth person to succeed, and in doing so, she, with her tremendous speed, set a mark for the crossing that veteran swimmers agree may quite possibly stand for all time.

Moreover, had conditions been half-way favorable, channel experts believe she would have made the swim in something under the amazing time of 12 hours.

The little 19-year-old daughter of Henry Ederle, prosperous butcher, took off from Cape Gris-Nez at 7:05 a. m., French "summer" time. Her start was at 1:05 a. m. Eastern standard time; her triumphant finish at 3:39 p. m. that time.

At the very outset conditions generally were favorable, but ere Trudie had reached midchannel she had encountered storm conditions and for more than half of her racking journey she battled tumultuous seas, whipped up by a gale-like, adverse wind and that became mountainous as she neared the English coast.

With an amazing show of pluck and endurance atop her splendid swimming form that, from early girlhood had gained her many titles, she overcame seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

Not once complaining, except that her advisers continually urged her to slow down to conserve her strength for the desperate battle with the rough waters they knew to be in store for her in the final stages of her journey—if, indeed, she reached the vicinity of the Dover cliffs that were her goal—she smilingly, determinedly stuck to her tremendously difficult task even when all those on the accompanying official tug, the Alsace, from Boulogne, Capt. Joe Cortes, save her father and sister, Mrs. Margaret Deuschle, implored her to give up the effort lest she pay for her gameness with her life.

Demand That She Stop.

Hours before her triumphant finish, when in the berserk seas, none but her accompanying kin-folk believed she could much longer continue with any measure of safety to herself, Capt. Cortes, a veteran channel mariner, who had accompanied swimmers on scores of similar attempts, and even her veteran trainer, Thomas William Burgess, the Englishman who was second to swim the channel, insisted that she be taken from the water before the waves battered her into unconsciousness.

Such terrific seas were battering the tug that Capt. Cortes had much difficulty keeping near enough to

J. L. EDWARDS DIES FOLLOWING 10-DAY PNEUMONIA ATTACK

Head of Brokerage Firm Bearing His Name to Be Buried Monday.

DEATH PROVES SHOCK TO BUSINESS CIRCLES

Was President of Local Stock Exchange and Member of City Clubs.

Funeral services for John Lewis Edwards, head of John L. Edwards & Co., nationally known brokers, and president of the Washington Stock Exchange, who died yesterday at his home, 1908 F street northwest, will be conducted at 11 o'clock Monday morning from the residence. Further arrangements have not been completed.

Mr. Edwards had been ill ten days of bronchial pneumonia, but death was directly due to acute dilation of the heart caused by his illness. His wife, daughter, and immediate relatives were at his bedside when he died at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. News of his death was received with dismay by his business associates and members of his firm, most of whom had not realized the serious nature of his illness. Business continued to be transacted as usual in the offices of his company, 1416 H street northwest, but visible depression and anxiety weighed upon all.

Stood for Best Traditions.

The death of Mr. Edwards removes from Washington business circles a man who has stood for the best and finest traditions of the National Capital. His end came in the old family home, where he was born 47 years ago, and where his family before him had lived for many generations. He was a son of the late John L. Edwards, a distinguished citizen of the Capital, and a grandson of James L. Edwards, of revolutionary war fame, who served as first commissioner of pensions of the District of Columbia.

Born on February 4, 1879, he was educated in the schools of the District and received his first business experience as an employee of the old National Bank of the Republic. His mother was Miss Florence E. Bowie, of Maryland, a direct descendant of Gov. Bowie of that State. Leaving the National bank to enter the American Security & Trust Co., Mr. Edwards resigned from the latter institution to found a real estate business in 1902. In 1912 he organized the firm of

JOHN L. EDWARDS

John L. Edwards & Co., a nationally famous stock exchange house, with offices at 1416 G street northwest, associating himself in this venture with the late Albert P. Madella. Subsequently this business was removed to 1426 New York avenue and later to the present home of the firm.

Mr. Edwards had been exceedingly active in recent years in the civic, business and club life of the community. His high sense of business integrity combined with innumerable private charities made him one of the most popular figures in Washington banking circles. He was a member of the Metropolitan club, the Chevy Chase club, the National Press club, the Aztec club, the Blue Ridge Rod and Gun club, the Westmoreland club, of Richmond, and numerous other city and country clubs throughout the country.

Prominent in City's Business.

Besides being a member of the New York Stock Exchange and president of the Washington Stock Exchange, Mr. Edwards belonged to the Washington Board of Trade and the Rotary club. He was a director of the Risks National Bank, the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co. and the Frieman's Insurance Co. He was a member of Temple No. 10, F. A. A. M., and Epiphany Episcopal church.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. John L. Edwards, who was Miss Gertrude Harrison, of the old Harrison family of Virginia; his daughter, Mrs. John Elbridge Parker, a grandchild, John Edwards Parker, a half-sister, Mrs. Ringwalt, of Germantown, Pa., and two cousins, Miss Annie L. Edwards, of this city, and John Winthrop Edwards, of Paris, France.

District Man Walks 635 Miles in 25 Days

Completing a walk of 635 miles, from Washington to Pittsburgh and back by way of Harrisburg, Louis V. Woulfe, of this city, returned home yesterday on the twenty-fifth day of his annual "hike," three days ahead of his original schedule. Rain, wind and sun failed to stop him on his recent expedition. He refused to accept any assistance from persons passing in automobiles.

Woulfe styles himself "hiker extraordinary." Annually he passes the countryside, writing a short article about his experiences on his return. One of his hobbies while walking is to count the automobiles passing him on the road, 18,000 cars being the total number seen on his recent jaunt. He is employed as an assistant in the office of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Man, 86, Is Injured In Fall From Porch

James Norris, 86 years old, 642 South Carolina avenue southeast, was severely injured last night when he lost his balance and fell from a porch about the first floor of his home. He was taken to Providence hospital suffering from shock, a fracture of the wrist and a deep cut over the left eye. Due to his age his condition was considered serious.

Norris was walking about the porch, it was said, and fell through a portion about which there was no railing. His son, William H. Norris, 1250 Wisconsin avenue northwest, who was visiting, took his father to the hospital.

Messenger Boy Hurt As Man Hits Cycle

Woodrow Bigelow, 16-year-old messenger, living at 721 K street northeast, was treated at Emergency hospital for cuts and bruises on the arms, sustained last night when a pedestrian crashed into his bicycle on Pennsylvania avenue near Fourteenth street northwest. Police failed to obtain the name of the man.

After crashing into the bicycle, the man hurried across Pennsylvania avenue without turning to see Bigelow, lying bleeding in the street. After paucifying a howling dog, the man returned to the scene of the accident and helped pedestrians place Bigelow in an automobile that took the boy to the hospital.

Mann Act Case Postponed.

The case of Paul Woodward, charged with violating the Mann act and fornication, continued yesterday in police court until next Saturday. Woodward also is said to be a fugitive from Virginia authorities, who are endeavoring to connect him with the murder of a Mrs. Keyes near Frederickburg. He escaped, police say, from Occoquan while he had four months of a jail sentence to serve.

APARTMENT OFFER FOR U.S. EMPLOYEES HELD NOT FEASIBLE

Builders Believe Project Can
Not Be Built for Low
Rentals Proposed.

PROFFER IS SINCERE HOOVER DECLARES

Questionnaire to Ascertain
Views of Government
Clerks Upon Proposal.

A philanthropic offer to furnish government employees up-to-date apartments at $12.50 a room monthly was received with professed incredulity by local real estate men yesterday, but the Department of Commerce gave the assurance that it was a bona fide proposition nevertheless.

The man who made the offer, and whose identity is being kept secret, is fully capable of carrying out the project if it is received sympathetically by the employees, the department made known, and Secretary Hoover said he had every reason to believe the sincerity of the offer.

The Secretary had the plan submitted to the government department heads through Edward W. Libbey, the Commerce Department's chief clerk. The departmental heads in turn are to submit questionnaires to the employees on the question of how they consider the offer and on the nature of them will presumably determine the next step.

Will Find Out Sentiment.

The questionnaires in no way commit those who reply to them, it was explained, but merely gauge the sentiment of the employees.

Rufus S. Lusk, spokesman for local organized builders, had any number of reasons at hand against the plan.

"It can't be done," he said flatly. Besides, Lusk pointed out, a lot of the employees own their homes and others are satisfied with their present quarters, including rentals. Not only that, but there are some apartments that can be obtained for $12.50 a month per room, he said.

Mr. Libbey declared that every effort will be made to place the matter before the more than 60,000 government clerks despite the fact that government can not act officially on the proposition.

Statement to Employees.

Mr. Libbey yesterday issued the following announcement to all Federal employees in Washington:

"The Department of Commerce has received a suggestion from a man of standing in the community that under certain conditions he would be prepared to erect attractive apartment houses in Washington to relieve the needs of Federal employees and to carry out the transaction in the sense of public service without speculative profit. The idea is to construct attractive apartment houses at charges to occupants simply covering cost of construction, operation, necessary interest, taxes and amortization charges. Two alternative bases are offered, either to rent or purchase. It is believed that two, three, or four room apartments can be erected on a basis of about $12.50 per room, bathroom included free of charge; or on a purchase basis of $250 cash payment per room with monthly charges sufficient to cover taxes, operation, interest and instalment payments on the principal.

It is proposed to erect the apartments in a desirable section of the city within ten minutes of the business center, the architects and builders of the project to be leaders in their respective fields, having recently built some of the most attractive housing projects adjacent to New York city.

Must Ascertain Demand.

"The Department of Commerce believes that from the character of the principals and their undoubted objective of public service that it offers an opportunity for relieving the high rent charges to public employees. Before the project can be undertaken, however, it is necessary to find whether there is any actual demand for such a service, and the Department of Commerce would be glad to receive from you an indication as to whether you are interested—whether, assuming that the above project could be carried out, you would desire, so far as you are able to say at the present time, to become a tenant. The signing of the attached statement will not commit you in any way."

Mr. Libbey stated that the employees will be asked to fill in questionnaires that will be distributed as soon as they can be printed, probably Monday. If these questionnaires show that enough government employees will agree to take the apartments something definite can be done, Mr. Libbey stated.

Mr. Lusk declared that it would be impossible to put the proposed project through unless those interested in the project intended to "give the apartments away."

With downtown property selling at $3 a foot it seems ridiculous to believe that the apartments could be constructed on the proposed basis, except at a huge loss to those interested, Mr. Lusk declared.

Two Freed Under Law Allowing Quart a Month

The Prince Georges county, Md., law permitting residents of the county one quart of liquor a month was sufficient defense for two men accused of possession of liquor before Justice of the Peace Robert E. Joyce in Mount Rainier last night.

The men, H. A. Kenny and Allen Aitch, were arrested July 25 by Constable C. E. Flory, of Bladensburg, the former charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and interfering with an officer, and the latter charged with disorderly conduct and possession of liquor.

Judge Joyce eyed dubiously a bottle partly filled with Scotch whisky and another partly filled with gin, said to have been taken from the men. State's Attorney Alan Bowie agreed that if the contents of both bottles were combined there would hardly be a quart, and Judge Joyce dismissed the charges.

Time He Was B. & O. Telegraph Operator at 16.

John Herbert Tonge, manager of the Washington terminal, died in his apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest at 8 o'clock last night. A heart attack was the cause of death. He was 59 years old.

Mr. Tonge had been ill for about a week. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Cora V. Tonge. Funeral arrangements will be announced today.

Born in Zanesville, Ohio, October 10, 1866, Mr. Tonge attended the public schools, and at the age of 15 years became a student telegraph operator in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Newark, Ohio. From that time on, he was always in the railroad business. He served at various places as a telegraph operator for the Baltimore & Ohio, and in 1885 went with the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad. Later he became a telegraph operator in the general offices of the Northern Pacific railroad at St. Paul, Minn.

In 1890 Mr. Tonge became a train dispatcher for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. Subsequently he served in this capacity for several other roads, and in 1906 he was made train master of the Cumberland Valley railroad at Chambersburg, Pa.

He was made superintendent of that railroad in 1906, and continued in this office until 1918, when the Federal government took over the railroad. He was then made general superintendent of the Potomac district, which included several lines. In March, 1920, Mr. Tonge was appointed superintendent of the Washington terminal, and February 1, 1925, was made the manager of the terminal.

STANLEY LANSBURGH AT REST WITH HONORS

Stanley Lansburgh, first vice president of the Lansburgh & Bro. department store, who died Thursday morning at his home in the Argonne apartments, was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in the Washington Hebrew Congregation cemetery, following private services at the home.

Approximately 500 employees of the store met the body at the grave, a tribute to the memory of the employer with whom they had so long been associated. Eight of the older employees, Max Hirsch, Max Kahn, William Murphy, Frank Major, Lee West, Ollie Norris, Hull Estabrook and Fritz Hohoff were pallbearers.

The services at the home were conducted by Rabbi Rosenblum, of the Washington Hebrew congregation, of which Mr. Lansburgh was a member. Rabbi Harry L. Kronman delivered the eulogy. Members of the family attended the services.

Mr. Lansburgh was the youngest member of the family of the late Gustav Lansburgh, founder of the store. He succumbed to heart disease, from which he had suffered nearly all his life. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sylvia Lansburgh, two boys and five sisters. The store will remain closed until Monday.

Howard University Official
Tells of Place Church

RELATIONS WITH WHITES SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Disarming of Colored Soldiers
Condemned in Resolutions;
Pageant Presented.

Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary-treasurer of Howard university, addressed the curriculum conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church school convention at the Galbraith church, yesterday afternoon, treating the subject from the standpoint of race relations involved and the utilization of church auspices for development of economic programs. Bishop George C. Clement presided. Prominent circulation of church periodicals was discussed by the Rev. J. T. Daniels, of Newtown, Pa.

Social questions in the promotion of Christian education was the subject of an address by Dr. George E. Haynes, secretary of the Federal council commission on church and race relations. This subject was the theme of an address also by Dr. James E. Shepherd, president of the State college at Durham, N. C. Church clinics for babies and kindergarten work were treated by Dr. Charles Allen, Miss Willetta Matthews, Miss Evelyn Carter and Miss Evelyn Davis, of East Chicago, Ind.

Primary department work in the Sunday school was the subject of addresses by Miss Irma Brookins, of Louisville; Miss Anna Robinson, of New York; Mrs. Frankie McCaskill, Miss Amelia L. Sawyer, Mrs. Elouise Coleman and Mrs. Jessie Jackson.

Army System Condemned.

Resolutions condemning assignment of colored soldiers of the regular army at Fort Benning, Ga., without arms were passed, principally because of the recent murder of a soldier of the Twenty-fourth infantry at Americus, Ga., by a mob, and the acquittal of his assailants. A telegram was sent to the National Negro Press association, in session in Philadelphia, thanking that body for its fight made against the attendance of colored church workers at the meeting of the international Sunday school convention in Birmingham, Ala., under unfavorable restrictions.

The Equal Rights league, of Boston, and Monroe Trotter, of that city, especially, were subjects of a commendatory resolution for their protest made to President Coolidge with reference to discrimination against negroes in branches of the government service.

A pageant, "The Quickening Flame," by Miss Mary L. Mason, presented last night at the John Wesley church, traced spiritual growth of the race from voodoo worship, the slavemaster's teaching, and the cornfield school, the "Birth of Zion" at morning and commencement of Livingstone college at high noon, to the vision of Ethiopia enthroned.

Musical Program.

A musical program included numbers by C. E. N. Botsen, Marie Coleman, Mme. Marie Agnes Jordan, Annie Pearl Bouville, Beulah Caldwell, Rexford Overton, M. E. Taylor, Dr. Van S. Whitted and Lovett Aggrey Warner. Musical organizations represented were the Brooklyn Glee club, the Jersey City

Fenning's Indian Clubs Reclaimed From Office

When Ralph Norton, secretary to former Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning, as well as to the new commissioner, Proctor L. Dougherty, packed up Fenning's effects for removal from the District building early this week, he forgot a huge pair of Indian clubs, with which the former commissioner was wont to exercise both before and after congressional committee hearings. It is said.

Yesterday a messenger was seen leaving the municipal premises with the former commissioner's muscle builders, one under each arm.

Her legs crushed and suffering from internal injuries the girl was operated on at Casualty hospital in an attempt to save her life. She died at 2:45 o'clock.

Thomas, whose automobile struck down a lamp post after colliding with Clark's car, is himself suffering from bruises and shock.

Those receiving less serious injuries in other traffic accidents yesterday were Maurice Kuper-smid, 1710 Corcoran street northwest; Elizabeth McDermott, 3 years old, 1337 Genoa street northeast; Robert Meeker, 20 years old, Ivy City; William F. The church school parade today, after marching through the principal streets of the city, will reach Pennsylvania avenue and Tenth street at 3 o'clock, will be reviewed by bishops and general officers of the church at the District building and will disband at the Sherman statue. Field day events on the Ellipse will include a baseball game between girls' teams of Shiloh Baptist and Galbraith churches, and an intercity baseball clash between a local and a Philadelphia church school aggregation.

TILSON GIVES VIEW OF CAMPAIGN PLAN TO THE PRESIDENT

Joint Eastern Congressional Senatorial Offices to Open in Week.

COOLIDGES PAY VISIT TO FRIENDS IN LUDLOW

No Reports Received That Russia Is Planning to Pay Debts to Us.

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—President Coolidge was informed today by Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican floor leader in the House, that joint Eastern senatorial and congressional campaign headquarters would be opened in New York next week.

Mr. Tilson, who is to open the offices himself, came with Mrs. Tilson from Lake Sunapee, N. H., where he has a camp, and remained for lunch with the President and Mrs. Coolidge at the old homestead, where the latter are visiting for a few days.

A number of subjects were said to have been discussed by the President and Mr. Tilson, but the political situation was not taken up in detail. After the Eastern campaign offices have been opened, Mr. Tilson expects to go to White Pine camp in the Adirondacks and report on the situation at some length to Mr. Coolidge. At present, he said today, reports received from various sections of the country on the congressional campaign were "comfortable."

Mr. Coolidge was said to have heard no reports that the Russian government might move to settle the debt it owes to the American government. If the present regime in Russia should desire to take such action, it was stated it would first revoke the ordinance under which it repudiated the debt.

In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went calling in Ludlow, 12 miles away. They stopped at the Ludlow Banking & Trust Co., while the President talked over the situation with Homer L. Skeels, president, and other officials of the bank. Mr. Skeels is a member of the Ludlow law firm of Stickney, Sargeant & Skeels, of which the Attorney General of the United States is a member.

Then they went a few miles further to Proctorsville, a section of Ludlow, where both went into the small home of Mrs. Sarah Polard, an aunt of the President on his mother's side, and visited for half an hour.

Mr. Coolidge went with rod and line to Pinney Hollow Brook, a quarter of a mile from the Coolidge home. Although he remained for five hours, little luck attended him, and the few trout he caught were so small that he threw them back. Mrs. Coolidge, in the meantime, went blueberrying in a neighboring pasture and had better luck, returning in little more than an hour with a full bushel.

President Coolidge plans to return to the Adirondacks.

Unchanged, Say Friends.

Friends and neighbors, although proudly remembering Mr. Coolidge's high position, say they find him unchanged.

H. L. Moore grew up with Mr. Coolidge and roomed with the future President for a year at the Black River academy in Ludlow in the eighties. He has always made his home here, where he owns a farm. In 1924 he formed the Home Town Coolidge club and led it on a campaign trip by automobile across the country.

Most of those who were boys here with Calvin Coolidge have long since moved away, but a few remain. In addition to Mr. Moore there are Clarence and Ed Blanchard, Julien Hall and Charles Sawyer, all farmers or laborers.

Mr. Moore spoke for them today when he said, "Cal hasn't changed a bit."

"Cal always was a student," he continued. "Unlike most of us who had to work hard on the farm and could not get away for any long periods, he always went to school. He didn't play ball or skate, nor did he hunt, swim, fish or go in for any sports except that he walked a great deal. When he was in the academy he went to the public library every day and I think he read every book in it. Then, just before dark, he would walk around the park near the library."

Presidential Yacht Going to New England

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The presidential yacht Mayflower, which has been undergoing repairs and a complete overhauling at the navy yard here, will sail Tuesday for a port on the New England coast, where she will await orders and be available for the President's use, it was learned today.

Two navy destroyers also will leave August 10. These ships, the John B. Edwards and the Borie, will go to Newport, R. I., where they will join the destroyer fleet now stationed there.

MYSTERY CAR STIRS CANTON TO VIGILANCE

Guardman Is Placed at Home of Witter, Once Newspaper Man.

Canton, Ohio, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Efforts of investigators into the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, were turned toward adequate provision for their protection today, following the loitering of three men in an automobile near the home of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock and the receipt of threats by Herman Witter, State director of industrial relations.

An Ohio national guardman, on duty at the McClintock home last night, fired a shot at the men in the automobile after he had been shoved off the running board following his efforts to question them regarding the reason why they remained near the house. The automobile, which sped away, had its license plates covered.

A national guardman in plain clothes was assigned to guard the Witter home because of threats made against him in his activities on an inquiry into the murder. Witter is a former newspaper man.

Coast Guard Cutter Is Rammed by Barge

Boston, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The United States coast guard cutter 130 came into port today with a three-foot hole in her starboard side and her fore and main masts missing as a result of a collision with a barge 14 miles off Boston light.

Her crew of eight men had worked the emergency pumps for four hours while she fought her way back to port. Capt. R. E. Taylor and Boatswain's Mate Edward J. Brown narrowly escaped serious injury when the barge stove through the side of the cutter.

Sunday Ban Is Held Ruinous for Sesqui

Philadelphia, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Sesquicentennial exposition investors face a loss of more than $100,000,000 and the whole project will be a complete failure if it is not permitted to operate on Sundays, in the opinion of counsel for the Sesquicentennial association.

They so assert in their reply to the State attorney general's writ, which seeks to show the association exceeds its charter by remaining open on Sunday. The reply is to be filed in the county court at Harrisburg.

Iron Worker Claims Estate of $5,200,000

Kewanee, Ill., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—John Cooper, an iron worker, expects to come into a fortune and greater happiness for his wife and four children when he attains his thirty-third birthday, September 18. On that day, he says, he will inherit a huge Virginia estate, represented by Wilmington, Del., attorneys, consisting of $5,200,000 in cash and securities and 1,600 acres in the Shenandoah valley.

The family now lives above a grocery. The fortune, Cooper says, is the Bradford estate, left him by his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Bradford.

5 WARRANTS ISSUED IN HALL-MILLS QUIZ, SAY INVESTIGATORS

Lists Given by Simpson and Captain, However, Fail to Agree.

PROSECUTOR ASSERTS TROOPERS IGNORE HIM

Denied That Testimony in New Jersey Murder Case Has Been Stolen.

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The revived investigation of the Hall-Mills murder mystery continued its spectacular course today with threats of arrest and questioning of witnesses. State Senator Alexander Simpson, functioning as a special deputy attorney general, and Capt. J. J. Lamb, State troop officer, active in the investigation, said warrants for five persons had been issued. Both gave names, but their lists did not agree. William R. Sutphen, justice of the peace, said by Senator Simpson and Capt. Lamb to have issued the warrants, would not confirm these statements.

Four of them were brought to the headquarters of State troopers and were questioned by Senator Simpson. Two others were brought in after Senator Simpson's departure for Jersey City. State troopers would not say whether any of the witnesses had been arrested.

Senator Simpson said that the questioning revealed nothing new. Signs of Dissention.

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Indications of dissention between Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson and New Jersey State troopers investigating the Hall-Mills murder mystery became apparent today.

On Wednesday the prosecutor gave orders to the State troopers to have warrants issued for Nellie L. Russell, negroess, and Ralph Gorsline, who was a vestryman in Dr. Edward W. Hall's church, for questioning.

The warrants were not obtained, and last night the prosecutor called troopers to his office and insisted that the papers be issued. He said today that he "doesn't know yet" if his instructions have been carried out. He said that the warrants were not to be used unless the persons attempted to leave the State.

State police today were rounding up four former servants in the Hall home, according to Senator Simpson, so that he might question them. The witnesses are Mrs. Louise Algest Riehl, a former maid whose alleged statements revealed in her husband's annulment suit reopened the murder investigation; Marie Glidew, cook; Barbara Tough, a maid, and Peter Timilty, chauffeur.

Report Evidence Stolen.

Boundbrook, N. J., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Mysterious telephone calls and an alleged missing trunk have been added to vanishing witnesses as headline factors in the reopened investigation of the murder four years ago of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Police today discounted as a hoax a report to them at midnight that a trunk full of documentary evidence had been stolen from the home of Mrs. John Merlett, who is Azariah Peekman, who conducted the first investigation, lived before his death.

LAWYERS OF VIRGINIA ELECT R. G. WILLIAMS

Plan to Reorganize Bar Association Is Given to New Committee.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—With the election of R. Gray Williams, of Winchester, as president, the naming of other officers and the cleaning up of a large volume of business matters, the Virginia Bar association today concluded the final session of its thirty-seventh annual convention here.

Characterized as one of the most constructive sessions on record and an "unqualified success" in every detail, approximately 200 leading lawyers of the Commonwealth tonight departed for their homes.

No decision was reached on the recommendations contained in the report of the special committee, appointed last year, and submitted yesterday to the association, and the matter was referred to another special committee composed of eleven members, one from each congressional district and one at large. This committee was authorized to call a convention of delegates from each of the bar associations of the State to discuss the proposal to reorganize the association.

Los Angeles Speeds To Avoid Storms

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The dirigible Los Angeles hurried back to her hangar ahead of schedule today on advice that there was a possibility of storms along the Atlantic coast, after completing radio compass tests with New England stations yesterday.

She left Boston at midnight eastern standard time and proceeded slowly through heavy fog, the officers guiding her course almost entirely by radio compass.

Soviet Army Unrest Is Denied in Moscow

London, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—A dispatch from the Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, in response to an inquiry regarding reports broadcast from Reval, Estonia, says there is no unrest in the Soviet army and that no arrests have been made in the Moscow garrison.

HOSTILITY TO DEBT PLAN OF POINCARÉ POSTPONES DEBATE

Ministers Will Now Meet Monday to Discuss British and U. S. Pacts.

OPPOSITION HOLDS UP EARLY RATIFICATION

Move to Hurry Approval Held as Certain to Bring Reservations.

Paris, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Hostility to Premier Poincaré's proposed move to push for ratification of the debt agreement with the United States and Great Britain, expressed in the parliamentary lobbies today, has caused the government to postpone discussion of the pacts in the ministerial council tomorrow as was planned. Instead, the ministers will meet Monday.

M. Berenger, Ambassador to the United States who negotiated the Washington debt agreement, has deferred his departure for the United States until the situation is straightened out by ratification. He said today that he expected ratification before the close of the present session.

M. Poincaré's original intention, as sent out in the form of a trial balloon this morning, was to get the chamber and senate finance and foreign affairs committees to name "reporters," to bring in recommendations for ratification of both agreements as soon as the senate and chamber, sitting at Versailles Tuesday, met in session.

The killings occurred on the Cape Sable road, 30 miles southwest of Homestead. The prohibition officers charged that the three men pursued them in an automobile and opened fire. None of the raiding party was wounded.

The raiding party, under leadership of C. W. Standau, consisted of A. C. Givahn, John Shirley, W. M. Simmons, L. L. Anderson, prohibition agents, and Sol Mills, a deputized citizen.

The slain men were M. P. Merritt, former constable of the Sixth district; Cly Parrish, son of a former Homestead policeman, and J. A. Brinson, a resident of Homestead.

Mills and Parrish were on "bad terms," according to citizens of Homestead. It was said there was a tacit understanding that Parrish's father and Mills would "shoot it out" at the first opportunity.

Givahn recognized Merritt as a man he arrested on previous occasions. Merritt pointed to Givahn and shouted that he was going to kill him.

Through a rain of bullets, Simmons opened fire on the other automobile. Merritt was shot and died behind his steering wheel, rifle in hand.

Givahn, Standau and Shirley opened fire. Parrish dropped into a canal with two bullets in his back. Brinson, a rifle in his grasp, dropped on the other side of the road and was shot twice today. "We all can shoot pistols—that's our business."

Five other men armed with rifles drove up, but surrendered.

They gave their names as M. L. Newton, C. A. Parlin, Gene Roberts, W. L. Roberts and L. S. Roberts.

RULING BY M'CARL REMOVES OBSTACLE

His office refuse to discuss it. Officials of the park and planning commission also declare they have not received a decision in the case. Exactly what Mr. McCarl's decision will cover will not be known in definite detail until it is formally announced, but in spite of the secrecy with which the forthcoming decision is being guarded, it is understood that it will be favorable to the commission and leave open to it channels through which it can proceed to completion of its park program for the current year.

Just what effect the decision will have on the future attitude of Congress toward appropriations next and following years for both the parks and school sites is problematical. The restriction that prices paid should not be more than 25 per cent beyond the assessed value of purchased land was the result of the belief of many members of Congress that the Federal and the District government was paying too much for its land. Undoubtedly many of the supporters of the restrictive clause will find fault with any procedure which gets around its intent, whether the evasion is legal or not.

Want Assessments Increased.

One effect of the situation has been to cause property owners to ask that the assessment of their property be increased. Should there be a general increase in assessments, on the basis of which property owners must pay taxes, it is believed that this would be regarded as meeting much of the objections voiced by critical members of Congress.

The impasse with which the park and planning commission found itself confronted was brought to the attention of leading District business men in a letter written recently by A. C. Moses to R. P. Andrews, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers association, quoting a statement of the situation by Fred G. Coldren, of the park commission.

There was sharp criticism at the meeting at which the letter was discussed of the low assessment of unimproved property in the District, several business men declaring that these low assessments were responsible, at least partially, for a higher taxation on business and improved property.

Veterans Who Reject Legion Held Slackers

Chester, S. C., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—In an address before the South Carolina American Legion and the legion auxiliary, here today, Hanford MacNider, Assistant Secretary of War and past national commander of the legion, said that an eligible man who remains on the outside of the organization is "as much a slacker as the man who refuses to serve when his country called him to arms."

Col. MacNider compared non-members of the legion to those who are benefited by the hardships through which those who built the nation passed, "oftentimes complaining at the way the job has been done for them."

POLICE GUARD HEARING AFTER AGENTS SLAY 3

Six Prohibition Men Assert They Were Ambushed; Bad Feelings Charged.

CROWDS SURROUND COURT

Homestead, Fla., Aug. 6 (By Associated Press).—Apprehensive of an outbreak, a score of armed deputy sheriffs, Miami policemen and Federal agents surrounded city hall here late today as the investigation into the killing of M. P. Merritt, Clyde Parrish and J. A. Brinson by six Federal prohibition agents was started.

Long before the inquest began crowds were gathering in the vicinity of the city hall, where J. P. Johnson, justice of the peace, assembled witnesses for the inquiry.

The killings occurred on the Cape Sable road, 30 miles southwest of Homestead. The prohibition officers charged that the three men pursued them in an automobile and opened fire. None of the raiding party was wounded.

The raiding party, under leadership of C. W. Standau, consisted of A. C. Givahn, John Shirley, W. M. Simmons, L. L. Anderson, prohibition agents, and Sol Mills, a deputized citizen.

The slain men were M. P. Merritt, former constable of the Sixth district; Cly Parrish, son of a former Homestead policeman, and J. A. Brinson, a resident of Homestead.

His office refuse to discuss it. Officials of the park and planning commission also declare they have not received a decision in the case. Exactly what Mr. McCarl's decision will cover will not be known in definite detail until it is formally announced, but in spite of the secrecy with which the forthcoming decision is being guarded, it is understood that it will be favorable to the commission and leave open to it channels through which it can proceed to completion of its park program for the current year.

Just what effect the decision will have on the future attitude of Congress toward appropriations next and following years for both the parks and school sites is problematical. The restriction that prices paid should not be more than 25 per cent beyond the assessed value of purchased land was the result of the belief of many members of Congress that the Federal and the District government was paying too much for its land. Undoubtedly many of the supporters of the restrictive clause will find fault with any procedure which gets around its intent, whether the evasion is legal or not.

Want Assessments Increased.

One effect of the situation has been to cause property owners to ask that the assessment of their property be increased. Should there be a general increase in assessments, on the basis of which property owners must pay taxes, it is believed that this would be regarded as meeting much of the objections voiced by critical members of Congress.

The impasse with which the park and planning commission found itself confronted was brought to the attention of leading District business men in a letter written recently by A. C. Moses to R. P. Andrews, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers association, quoting a statement of the situation by Fred G. Coldren, of the park commission.

There was sharp criticism at the meeting at which the letter was discussed of the low assessment of unimproved property in the District, several business men declaring that these low assessments were responsible, at least partially, for a higher taxation on business and improved property.

87 IN IRON ASSOCIATION PAY $217,500 IN FINES

American Malleable Castings' Members Accept Sentences, Ending Long Fight.

PRICE CONSPIRACY HELD

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—A Federal court fight of almost two and a half years' duration against 48 members of the American Malleable Castings association and 47 large malleable iron-casting companies was terminated today when 87 defendants appeared before Federal Judge Westenhaver, entered pleas of nolo contendere and were each fined $2,500.

The indictment upon which the defendants were brought to trial was returned by a Federal grand jury at Cleveland in March, 1924, and followed a long Federal investigation. The defendants bitterly fought the government's efforts to bring them to trial.

Finally, however, by virtue of a Supreme Court ruling, the defendants were ordered to appear here for trial. Date was set for September 13, 1926.

The decision to enter the nolo contendere pleas which are virtually pleas of guilty as the expression means that the indictment is not contested, came at a meeting eight days ago in Washington between Attorney General Sargent, his assistant, Russell Hardy, and representatives of the American Malleable Castings association.

The indictment returned against the defendants charged them with manufacturing 75 per cent of the annual production of malleable castings in the United States; with having conspired since January, 1917, to assign and allot the buyers of malleable iron castings amongst themselves and to fix prices. These alleged arrangements, the indictment holds, would serve to eliminate competition.

The indictment further charged that the American Malleable Castings association was used in carrying out the alleged conspiracy. The indictment was returned under the provisions of the Sherman antitrust act.

Maximum fines for corporations for this charge is $5,000, and for individuals is $5,000 and a year's imprisonment. The $2,500 fine was agreed upon at the conference last week.

The fines meted out today totaled $217,500. Several weeks ago five of the original 95 defendants entered pleas and were fined an aggregate of $14,500. This brought the total of the fines to $232,000.

Cuban to Be Garroted For Murdering Mayor

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The garrote, ancient instrument of death, is shortly to be called into use in Cuba for the second time in 20 years, President Machado having signed the death warrant in the case of Hernan Pena.

Convicted of murdering Mayor Ascension Villalon of Santiago de Cuba, Pena will be sent to the garrote within 24 hours after his official notification, which is expected to be made at midnight tonight.

Givahn, Standau and Shirley opened fire. Parrish dropped into a canal with two bullets in his back. Brinson, a rifle in his grasp, dropped on the other side of the road and was shot twice today. "We all can shoot pistols—that's our business."

Five other men armed with rifles drove up, but surrendered.

They gave their names as M. L. Newton, C. A. Parlin, Gene Roberts, W. L. Roberts and L. S. Roberts.

Body of Girl, Slain At Ranch, Identified

Okmulgee, Okla., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The finding of the body of a young girl in the attic of a ranch house near here yesterday was partly cleared today when the slain girl was identified as May Deile, 16, of Coweta, Okla.

The girl was employed two weeks ago as housekeeper for Joe Hodges, owner of the ranch house, who killed his wife and then himself Wednesday night in Muskogee. Neighbors said Hodges killed his wife because of jealousy, but were unable to advance a theory that would clear up the slaying of the housekeeper.

WITNESSES DEEPLY PRIMARY QUIZ FACE CONTEMPT CHARGES

Senate to Dispose of Record
Number of Cases Upon Convening.

ACTION TO BE SOUGHT
BY REED COMMITTEE

Matter Is Expected to Reach Courts on Question of Authority.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

When the Senate convenes in December it will have before it a record-breaking number of contempt cases to dispose of as a result of refusal of witnesses before the Reed committee to answer questions pertaining to expenditures in the Pennsylvania and Illinois primary elections. So far, Senator Reed has made it known that he will ask the Senate to certify the cases of Daniel J. Schuyler, attorney for Samuel Insull; Mr. Insull himself; Thomas W. Cunningham, of Philadelphia, and perhaps State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, of Illinois, to the district attorney of the District of Columbia, Peyton Gordon.

How many more cases of this character will swell the list before the work of the committee is concluded, and there is every indication that witnesses and prospective witnesses will be told by their counsel that they cannot be compelled to answer questions which the committee proposes to propound.

Courts May Decide Question. Thus, the question of the Senate committee's power to compel testimony is to be challenged in a manner which may require the courts to decide the century-old question of whether or not a committee of Congress can force a citizen of the United States to come before it and assist it in its work. The question of whether such citizen voluntarily provides information, or whether he or she does not wish to be drafted into the legislative or investigatory machinery of the government.

If the Senate's claim to unlimited power in the matter of compelling witnesses to testify is to stand, then the District jail here may have a number of prominent industrial leaders as inmates in the near future, because the standing rules of the Senate make the jail sentence mandatory for witnesses who refuse to testify. Every conceivable question, no matter how irrelevant or embarrassing or tinged with partisan politics it may be, can be asked and the witness must answer or go to jail, according to the exponents of unlimited power in congressional investigations. There is only one escape for the witness and that is that he may decline to answer on the ground that his answer would tend to incriminate him. But the witness cannot refuse on the ground that his answer would tend to disgrace or disgrace him.

Senate Rules Provide Penalty. Sections 102, 103, and 104 of the standing rules of the Senate contain the provisions designed to give that body unlimited power over the witnesses. These sections provide that if a witness refuses, "to answer any questions pertinent to the question under inquiry, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 nor less than $100, and imprisonment in a common jail for not less than one month nor more than twelve months."

"No witness is privileged to refuse to testify to any fact," says section 102, "or to produce any paper, respecting which he shall be examined, or by any committee of either house, upon the ground that his testimony to such fact or his production of such paper may tend to disgrace him or otherwise render him infamous."

Section 104 states, "Whenever a witness, summoned as mentioned in section 102, fails to testify, and the facts are reported to the house, the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House, as the case may be, shall certify the fact, under the seal of the Senate or House, to the district attorney of the District of Columbia, whose duty it shall be to bring the matter before the grand jury for their action."

Senate to Cite Cases. Thus, District Attorney Peyton Gordon will have no discretion in the matter of bringing the cases of the witnesses cited by the Senate before the grand jury here. That the Senate will vote to cite the cases to the district attorney is accepted as a foregone conclusion.

But at this point, the jurisdiction of the Senate ends and the courts intervene and it is upon the courts that the witnesses rely for their vindication. The question of the constitutional rights of the witnesses automatically comes up and, in the case of the Reed committee's investigation, the question of the Senate's power to compel testimony in the matter of primary elections plays an important role.

The Supreme Court of the United States, in the Newberry case, decided that there was no law giving the Senate jurisdiction over primary elections. In other words, this Supreme Court decision is interpreted to mean that the Senate has no right to probe into primary elections at all and certainly no power to compel unwilling witnesses to testify respecting purely State matters.

Committee's Authority Challenged.

At the outset of the hearings before the Reed committee, Mr. Burke, attorney for the Mellon-Pepper-Fisher interests, read a formal statement to the committee flatly challenging its authority. Senator Reed permitted the challenge to go unopposed. Later, when the committee's designated witnesses declined to answer questions on the ground that the committee had no right to ask them, Senator Reed again avoided raising the issue of committee's authority. He was told by his counsel that part of the desired information by tact which caused Mr. Beldie to voluntarily answer.

When Senator Reed asked Attorney General Woodruff how much money he was worth, the latter said:

"Are you going to compel me to answer that?"

"I am not going to compel you to answer anything," Senator Reed replied, and the issue was, again, avoided. But in the Illinois hearings the witnesses appeared to have no intention of answering questions, and Senator Reed no choice but to cite them for contempt.

Thus, first the lower courts and ultimately the Supreme Court of the United States may have to pass on the constitutionality of sections 102, 103 and 104 of the Senate rules which give the committee power to compel witnesses to testify. The Supreme Court has never sanctioned the constitutionality of these sections. Cases have come up involving this question of constitutionality, but the Supreme Court has never passed upon the main issue involved. This, it has been pointed out by the justices themselves, is because the matter is of such far-reaching importance to the fundamental principles of the government and to the guaranteed liberties of its citizens.

Possibilities of Investigations. If the Senate has unlimited power, it is explained, and can take over judicial functions and compel witnesses to answer questions under the guise of assisting legislation, there is no reason why some congressional committee, or subcommittee, imbued with a political purpose or to satisfy some grudge of one or more of its members, might not constitute itself into a sort of inquisition or soviet chetka. The constitutional rights of every citizen might be jeopardized and none would be safe. It has been argued, if a political committee backed by a temporary political power could usurp judicial functions without restriction.

On the other hand, if congressional committees pursuing legitimate legislative inquiries are not to be handicapped, they would not be handicapped if it is asked. Admittedly, in practically all the important hearings before committees of Congress, especially those dealing with revenue and other matters, testimony is freely and voluntarily offered by willing witnesses. There are many in Congress who contend that functions of government can be carried on without recourse to threats or compulsion against witnesses appearing before committees and that enough voluntary testimony can always be procured.

But the final decision on the main point rests with the Supreme Court of the United States and the witnesses who have refused to answer questions are relying upon the ultimate verdict of the courts.

Carter Admits Defeat In Oklahoma Primary

Ardmore, Okla., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Charles D. Carter, veteran representative from the Third Oklahoma district, conceded today his defeat for the Democratic renomination by Wilburn Cartwright, young school teacher-lawyer, from McAlester. Carter, who has represented the district since Oklahoma was admitted to the Union nearly nineteen years ago, estimated that Cartwright's plurality would amount to 1,300.

He was a member of the appropriations committee in the last Congress and is a recognized authority on the Indian affairs. Representative Carter announced he would retire from politics. He pledged his support to his youthful opponent.

Section 104 states, "Whenever a witness, summoned as mentioned in section 102, fails to testify, and the facts are reported to the house, the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House, as the case may be, shall certify the fact, under the seal of the Senate or House, to the district attorney of the District of Columbia, whose duty it shall be to bring the matter before the grand jury for their action."

ARLINGTON COUNTY EDUCATION BOARD PRESIDENT RESIGNS

C. C. Lamond Quits After 5
Years' Service; A. D. Davis
Named to Body.

STRAIGHT-TO-BRIDGE
GROUP CHANGES NAME

Association Adopts Title
Honoring Comd. Richard
Byrd, Pole Flier.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Clarendon, Va.

C. Clyde Lamond, who for the last five years has been president of the board of education in Arlington county, has resigned, effective September 1. Fletcher Kemp, superintendent of schools, announced last night. Mr. Lamond said last night he felt forced to take a rest from school duties.

The resignation has been accepted by the electoral board, and Mr. Kemp announced the appointment by the board of Albert Dexter, of Virginia Heights, to succeed Mr. Lamond as member of the school board. The board will hold a meeting early in September, at which time a president will be elected.

The name of the Straight-to-the-Bridge Boulevard association was changed to the Richard Byrd Straight-From-the-Bridge boulevard association following the unanimous adoption of a resolution offered by President Arthur Orr at a largely attended meeting held last night in the Clarendon Community hall.

Speaking of the value of the organization, Hugh E. Nator, of Front Royal, Va., one of the prime movers in the organization, said what is needed is a direct boulevard to the park. Displaying a map, he showed that by building the boulevard by way of the Manassas gap it would be more direct and much shorter than by way of Leesville.

Prof. C. L. Melton, principal of Randolph Macon college, in Indorsing the movement, stated that increased traffic will demand the building of such a boulevard.

"The plan to connect the nation's Capital and the national park is a modern and up-to-the-minute project and no more appropriate name could be selected than that which we have adopted," said R. C. McNeer.

Upon motion of C. R. Taylor, a board of directors, consisting of 21 members, including the officers of the association and presidents of the several civic organizations along the proposed route within the limits of Arlington county, the remainder to be selected from the association. The members of the board of directors will organize a separate corporation for the purpose of obtaining the necessary rights of way.

President Orr announced that considerable work already had been accomplished toward obtaining the right of way and that west of Glebe road as far as Falls Church it is assured.

There will be no increase in the telephone rates in Arlington county, said Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, as the result of the decision of the Virginia State corporation commission in denying the proposal of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. The commission did grant a 25 per cent increase in commercial lines, but that will not affect Arlington county. The telephone company has noted an appeal to the supreme court of appeals of Virginia.

Arlington county was represented at the hearing of Commonwealth's Attorney Gloth and State Senator Frank L. Ball.

FEAR CITED AS RESULT OF MONROE DOCTRINE

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The Monroe Doctrine, instead of bringing the Latin-American countries into closer contact with the United States and instituting a spirit of mutual trust, has eliminated from the minds of Latin-American peoples all fear of aggression from any portion of the United States, except the United States. Dr. L. S. Rowe, director-general of the Pan-American union, told the Institute of Politics today, in discussing the attitude of Latin-America towards this country.

Consensus of the great economic and political power that the United States has acquired, and recognizing that history contains no record of a nation, who used without abusing a like degree of power, there is constant question in the Latin-American mind, Dr. Rowe said, as to what we propose to do.

La Follette Blames Scandals on Senators

Neenah, Wis., Aug. 6 (By A. P.). Blame for "recent primary scandals unearched in Illinois and Pennsylvania," was laid at the door of Senator Irvine C. Lenroot, and other senators who voted to seat Senator Newberry, of Michigan, by Senator Robert M. LaFollette here today.

Senator LaFollette, in an address in behalf of the Blaine-Ekern progressives, said it was the senators who "broadcast to the world that seats in the Senate were for sale."

"The real cure is to put the corruptionists in jail and to drive from the Senate the rascals who voted to seat Newberry," he said.

David's Lead in Kansas Is Cut Down to 858

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 6 (By A. P.). Former Gov. Jonathan M. Davis' lead over Donald Muir, of Anthony, in the Democratic race for the gubernatorial nomination in Tuesday's primary had been cut to 858 votes when unofficial returns from all but 146 of the State's precincts had been tabulated today. Of the missing precincts, 105 are in western Kansas where the vote is always slow to come in. Official canvass of the vote began today.

PEAY NOW 5,000 AHEAD IN TENNESSEE PRIMARY

Finis J. Garrett's Nomination
Certain, Returns Show;
Reese Is Named.

SCOPES' LAWYER BEATEN

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Unofficial returns tonight from 1,842 of the 2,195 precincts in Tennessee showed Gov. Austin Peay, seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, holding a lead of nearly 5,000 votes over Hill McAlister, State treasurer, in yesterday's State-wide primary.

Peay had 87,653 votes and McAlister, 82,687. Gov. Peay, who took the leadership early today as reports from the rural districts drifted in, maintained his advantage as additional returns were received from the mountain districts. Headquarters of both candidates, however, issued equally optimistic statements tonight. The Democrats will be opposed by Walter White, Republican nominee, who had no contest in the primary.

On the face of unofficial returns Finis J. Garrett, minority house leader, was nominated in the Democratic congressional primary in the Ninth district, and B. Carroll Reese won the Republican nomination in the First district, the only congressional contests.

Dr. John R. Neal, senior counsel for the John R. Neal Scopes defense, took the lead in the evolution trial at Dayton, and Judge John T. Raulston, fundamentalist and presiding judge at the Scopes trial, were among the defeated candidates in yesterday's State primary and county elections.

The Democratic nomination for the Governorship, which was far outdistanced by his two opponents, Reese won tonight accounted for only 1,224 votes polled for him. Judge Raulston, Republican, was defeated in the election in the Eleventh district by Leslie R. Durr, of Jasper, Tenn. Durr is a minister's son.

Dr. Neal made his primary campaign on a liberal program favoring referendum prohibition, the opening of moving pictures on Sundays. He also favored repeal of the anti-evolution bill which Governor Peay signed and McAlister sponsored.

STEWART NOMINATED FOR CUMMINS' PLACE

most votes, and then humble Brookhart. Other chief contenders were former Judge Charles S. Bradshaw, of Des Moines, for many years Senator, and his partner, and former Representative Burton E. Sweet, of Waverly, whom Brookhart beat for the Senate nomination in 1922 and again in 1924. When the break for Stewart started it went to the favor of Cummins, in which Des Moines is located, throwing it 95 instructed Bradshaw votes to Stewart when he had 681.

The old guard insists that Brookhart broke the force of two weeks ago when he stood on the platform, which was merely a recall of the July 21 delegates, adopted this resolution before it adjourned.

It was resolved by the Republicans of Iowa in convention assembled that we stand squarely by the platform adopted in State convention on July 21, 1926, and still demand of our party in the national public party believe the middle West have a square deal."

Nominee Responds. And Stewart, his voice trembling with emotion when he was called on for a speech, said:

"I feel extremely humble because you have placed upon me the responsibility of stepping into the shoes of one of the greatest statesmen the middle West ever produced. I believe the Republican party is the best instrumentality through which American ideals can be perpetuated. Through the Republican party I believe agriculture will get a square deal."

Opposition Withheld. Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—The Republican party of Iowa will not nominate a candidate in the unexpired term of the late Senator Albert B. Cummins, to be filled at the November election, the State central committee announced tonight. The decision was reached a few hours after the Republican party, in State convention, had nominated David W. Stewart, of Sioux City, as its candidate for the short term.

Unless an independent files Stewart will have no opposition. The committee is to concentrate on the candidacy of Claude R. Porter, of Des Moines, full term nominee of the party, who is to oppose Col. Smith W. Brookhart.

There will be celebration of holy communion at 7:30 o'clock in St. Margaret's Episcopal church, the Rev. E. C. Parkman being celebrant. At 11 a. m. the morning prayer with sermon will be conducted by the Rev. Robert Shores.

Dr. Darby Goes West To Pass Vacation

Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, left town for his vacation yesterday and will pass the month in the Middle West. Tomorrow he will preach at Tabernacle Presbyterian church, Indianapolis.

On Sunday next he will supply the pulpit of the First Congregational church in Chicago. His pastor, Dr. W. A. Morgan, was in charge of Mount Pleasant Congregational church here several years. Dr. Darby will then go to the home of his mother near Evansville, Ind., until Labor day. He expects to return September 7 or 8. The office of the federation will remain open through the month. Miss Virginia G. Francis will be in charge.

SUMMER HOURS OF WORK.

Malcolm Kerlin, acting chief of the bureau of efficiency, recently suggested a five-day week for government workers in hot weather. He would give clerks all of Saturdays off and add an extra half hour during the cool of the morning on other days. His argument is that this would make for efficiency in the public service and be more comfortable for employees. The number of hours given to work would not thereby be increased or diminished.

There is much to commend this plan of Mr. Kerlin's, who, evidently, because of his official position, has had ample opportunity to study the effect of hot weather upon the work performed by employees, not only of the government but the business establishments of Washington. Going to work half an hour earlier five days a week ought not to inconvenience employees and certainly would not if it meant a full day off on Saturday, thereby providing two consecutive days for week-end outings.

A more satisfactory solution of the hot weather workday in the National Capital would be found in the adoption of daylight saving time. This plan has worked admirably in New York city and other industrial centers. Employees of all sorts begin their daily tasks earlier in the morning and finish in time to give them several hours of daylight at the end of the day in which to seek recreation. Statistics have shown that this longer play period for workers each day throughout the summer has resulted in better work and increased output.

Congress tried this experiment in Washington one year and it worked quite satisfactorily. Farmers, however, who for some mysterious reason, opposed this innovation, feared daylight saving in Washington would lead to its enforcement upon the farms, and started a movement that brought the experiment, so far as the Federal government was concerned, to an abrupt end.

Government clerks here are entitled to all the relief possible during the heated season, and if we can not have real daylight saving, the suggestion of Mr. Kerlin would seem to be worthy of a trial.

So many people think they are converted to a new idea when they have merely acquired a new prejudice.

BETTER STREET LIGHTS.

The statement is made that the new street illuminating system already installed on Sixteenth street, Massachusetts and Connecticut avenues, soon to be extended to include all the business section and heavily traveled residential streets, gives five times the illumination of the old lights at a cost only two and a half times greater. Washington concerns itself with only the first half of the statement, however, and demands proper street lighting at no matter what the cost. That the new lamps are comparatively so much cheaper than the old is merely cause for additional satisfaction.

Proper street lighting is important to the community in the matter of safety. Streets after dark must be safe places for women and children. The type of lighting makes this either possible or impossible. The community must have every possible protection against the burglar and second-story man. To him, brilliantly lighted pathways of escape are a primary discouragement. Correct street illumination makes night motoring possible without blinding headlights, and insures safer traffic, both for the motorist and the pedestrian.

Since 1923, when a survey of street lighting was undertaken by a civic committee, Washington has been anticipating the replacement of the old, inadequate lights. That the installation will be completed soon is a matter of favorable comment.

The great mystery of life is how the people who fill the streets all day manage to get a living.

A NEW SURGERY DEVICE.

A new system of operative surgery, devised to make possible the most delicate operations under heretofore impossible conditions, has recently been publicly demonstrated by a young French surgeon. An outgrowth of the war, it is expected to provide another boon to humanity.

The system has been named "Fixo-Decapage." It utilizes a series of five instruments, so constructed that their use will not be influenced by swaying airplanes or trains, thereby obviating dangerous delay when the patient is in need of immediate surgical attention. The instruments do away with the need of an assistant, and make the use of even a table superfluous. Of chief value in time of war, it is expected they will find other unexpected uses whenever disaster and calamity make use of surgical skill immediately necessary.

Another interesting medical announcement made by the secretary of the American mission to Lepers, to the effect that the time is not far distant when the world will be rid of leprosy entirely. The discovery, and the one upon which the prediction was based, is that when a case is treated as a new case it never reaches the stage where it is infectious. Furthermore, it is stated, a substitute far less expensive than the chaumogroa oil treatment has been discovered, and scientists are becoming convinced that all the necessary curative properties are contained in the substitute oil.

GERTRUDE EDERLE'S TRIUMPH.

Gertrude Ederle, an American girl, has accomplished a glorious feat. Battling the English channel, part of the time in choppy seas, through heavy rain, 14 hours and 31 minutes after having left the soil of France, she gained footing on the coast of England. Characteristically, this modest young woman then turned aside the plaudits of the inhabitants of Dover, boarded her tug, and returned to the quiet of the training camp on the French coast.

The English channel is a ferocious foe. No other woman swimmer has completed a crossing. Many, both men and women, have attempted the task. All save five men have been turned back. Miss Ederle has beaten the record of all, the fastest previous crossing having been made by the Argentinian swimmer, Sebastian Tiradoshi, in 16 hours 33 minutes.

On August 18, last year, Gertrude made the attempt and failed. She predicted, however, that the next attempt would prove successful. That she learned her lessons well in the previous attempt is indicated by her accomplishment. This is the girl against whose success gamblers were offering tremendous odds until her father appeared, ready to wager the savings of a lifetime. It is unfortunate that he was not able to place his bet, for Gertrude Ederle has triumphed.

The wicked cause some trouble, but most of life's unpleasantness is caused by people who mean well.

JOHN L. EDWARDS.

The death yesterday of John L. Edwards brought a keen sense of personal loss to banking, business and social circles in Washington. His uncompromising integrity made his name a synonym for fair dealing in financial and commercial life in the District and throughout the country. His unflinching courtesy and kindly interest endeared him alike to the great and humble, and created for him a cosmopolitan circle of friends. His untimely death will be widely mourned by a host of friends who admired him as a leader of men, as a husband, a devoted father and a never-failing friend.

The services of Mr. Edwards to the community were conspicuous and unselfish. He was an exemplar of devotion to public duty and business obligation. His charities were unostentatious, but most generous. Throughout his lifetime he was a credit to Washington, his native city, and it mourns his departure at an age when he seemed to be entering upon a still more important career.

There's no such thing as "unbiased opinion." If he has brains enough to form an opinion, he can't be a neutral.

BUDGET ESTIMATES.

It is announced that preliminary estimates of the 1927-28 needs of the government exceed the limit placed by President Coolidge in his last budget address. That limit was $3,200,000,000 outside the postal service appropriation and the tax refund. The head of the budget bureau will now present the preliminary figures to the President, whereupon the latter will suggest reductions so as to bring the total within the proposed limit. The revised figures must be before the budget bureau by September 15.

In his statement printed in the Congressional Record of July 12, Representative Madden said that the total estimates for 1926-27 submitted by the President and the budget bureau, including supplementary and deficiency estimates, aggregated $4,416,179,454; while the total appropriations of the last Congress were $4,409,377,454—about $6,802,000 less than the budget estimates. Speaking of the budget system Mr. Madden said:

Great credit is due to President Coolidge for the painstaking and faithful manner in which he has performed his duties under the budget law. The preparation of a budget for a government with as diverse interests and ramifications as those of the United States is a complicated and thankless task.

With Martin Madden at the head of the House committee on appropriations, Gen. Herbert Lord as head of the budget bureau, and a distinguished economist in the White House, further reductions in Federal expenditures may be expected.

OHIO'S ANTI-PRIMARY CAMPAIGN.

Further news of interest to opponents of the direct primary system comes from Ohio. Last Monday petitions to place the question of repeal of the direct primary before the voters at the primary election on August 10 were filed at the capital. The Ohio constitution requires that petitions for constitutional amendments must bear signatures equivalent to 10 per cent of the vote cast in the preceding gubernatorial election, collected from at least 45 counties. Although only 197,000 signatures were necessary, the petition was signed by 248,000 individuals, and when all scattered petitions have been received, it is expected that the total will have been swelled to over 300,000. The list of signers has been obtained from 63 counties.

Feeling against the direct primary has been gaining momentum in Ohio for several years. Early this year an organization of some of the best business and political minds of the State was effected to begin a militant campaign for repeal of this constitutional provision which has been in effect for thirteen years. The recent primary fund scandals of Pennsylvania and Illinois have given additional impetus to the work of the Ohio committee, until the number of signatories to the petitions has exceeded the expectations of even the most optimistic workers in the campaign.

It is now expected that both political parties will be asked to make statements on the subject in their party platforms this month. Although Gov. Donahey will probably ask the Democrats to go on record against the amendment, proponents of it are proclaiming vociferously that it will be adopted and that hereafter all nominations for State offices, United States senator, Congress, and county offices, will be made by party convention. The Ohio fight is being watched with interest by other States having a similar problem. Doubtless the result will have a far-reaching effect on the ultimate retention or rejection of the system.

You don't need much formal exercise on a vacation. Scratching is enough.

THE MOTHERS' PENSION.

News that the mothers' pension system will be put into effect early next month is welcomed by all concerned. Many feel that Washington has been without this necessary modern form of social relief too long, and its advocates will watch its inception with interest.

This piece of legislation was practically the only measure ever introduced before Congress with the unanimous indorsement of all civic bodies. Its wise provisions and almost universal backing augur well for its success. The original appropriation of $100,000 requested from Congress was cut to $75,000 in the enactment of the bill, however not over $10,000 of which may be disbursed for administration. It remains to be seen whether or not the plan, handicapped by a not too well filled pocket-book, can be administered properly.

Prior to passage of the pension plan Congress consolidated various civic organizations into a board of public welfare, which among other duties will administer the mothers' pension. This board now has a wonderful opportunity to be of service to the community. If it administers the pension wisely, despite the financial handicap, and can show at the end of the year improved conditions and alleviated distress, larger appropriations will be forthcoming. The future of the District mothers' pension system is squarely up to the board of public welfare.

It must be hard for modern youngsters to say: "Please charge the batteries," without adding, "to dad."

THE FRENCH FRANC.

The recent sudden rise in the value of the French franc is causing as much trouble in business circles as the decline. This is the evil result of the deflation that inevitably follows inflation. Every paper franc issued by the French government is a government debt. A falling franc benefits debtors; a rising franc benefits creditors.

Merchants buying or contracting for goods based on a certain value of the franc find themselves with goods rapidly declining in price, due to the rise in the exchange value of the franc. Exporters and importers having made contracts based on a certain exchange value of the franc find themselves bound to pay out francs of increasing value.

Until the sudden rise in the franc French merchants were doing business on the basis of about 40 to 45 francs to the dollar. Now they find themselves doing business on the basis of about 33 francs to a dollar, and still going up. Foreign money and securities dropped in exchange value as the French franc went up.

This is the story of deflation following the fever of inflation. Americans who suffered from currency deflation after the war will be able to realize what is happening to the French people who thought they were prosperous and happy in the possession of cheap francs which made prices high. The moment the franc rises, prices drop; and not infrequently persons who thought themselves rich suddenly become poor. Speculators profit, while legitimate business loses.

The United States Shipping Board declares that the "Leviathan" flying the American flag, not the "Majestic" flying the British flag, has the largest tonnage of any vessel afloat. The Leviathan, according to Lloyd's register, has a tonnage of 59,956, while the Majestic has a tonnage of 56,551. The Leviathan was the German ship Vaterland, launched at Hamburg, April 5, 1913. On April 6, 1917, two days after a state of war was declared to exist between Germany and the United States, the Vaterland was seized at Hoboken and later turned into a troop ship.

It is much better and safer to convert corn into sugar in 10 hours than to convert it into whisky in 24 hours. Farm relief never comes from the latter process.

The geological survey of the Department of the Interior reports that deposits of high grade manganese ore have been found in the Olympic mountain territory in the State of Washington. Manganese is used in the manufacture of steel and dry battery cells. Most of the manganese used in the American steel industry is imported; but it is hoped that a protective duty will encourage its domestic production, of which it is believed there are large quantities in this country.

The Worst Story I Heard Today—By Will Rogers

The Worst joke I heard today was told to me by an Englishman as I was just leaving England.

The wife of a man was going to Australia, and as her health was poor she didn't expect to return. He had been a bad husband, not as the world counts bad husbands, but as the woman knows them. He had never struck her. He had never been guilty of infidelity, but he had just treated her as a thing of no account. He had always thought of himself, not of her. He had neglected her, left her lonely, failed to share his income with her. He had, in fact, done all these various things of which convention takes no notice, but which really tear women's souls and break their hearts. Like most men of his kind he liked to make a show of sentiment, so as his wife was just stepping over the gangplank, he shed a tear and said:

"Now we part, dear, forever! This is the end!" She could just muster up sufficient strength to mutter, "Thank you."

PRESS COMMENT.

Summerlessness.

Fort Wayne News-Sentinel: If this is actually, as was predicted, a year without a summer, then we've been having a peach of a late spring.

Over in Italy.

Cincinnati Enquirer: In this country it's hard to tell whether it is a shot or just the backfire of an automobile. Over in Italy they never know whether it is Mount Vesuvius or Mussolini.

Might Make Queer Bedfellows.

Greensboro News: The governor points out that cotton and tobacco would benefit from the outright cancellation of the foreign debt. So would the banking business; and presently the cotton and tobacco interests will perceive it as clearly as big business in banking does now. Maybe here is the making of a real issue that will make bedfellows of Wall street and the cotton and tobacco producers. Plenty of time for developments, probably, before this country walks up to cancellation and calls it by the name of inevitable.

Figurative Outcast.

Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger: There will be no disarmament (says Senator Borah) so long as Russia with a huge army is treated as an outcast among nations. She is only an outcast figuratively. She has to be dealt with. She may be a bad apple, but she is in a barrel with some others slightly specked.

Just About Right.

The French say the debt agreement is too onerous and the radicals over here contend it is too lenient, which should be a reasonable indication it is just about right.

Historical Precedent.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle: If Mussolini hears rumbles of revolution in Sicily he has perhaps been taking a deferred course in Italian history. From Palermo to Messina, Sicily was Garibaldi's land in 1860 and afterward.

Detroit News: Contributions by the same man to two campaign funds in Illinois recall the old-time railroaders' remark, "We are Democrats in Democratic States and Republicans in Republican States and Erle men all the time."

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Much the queerest sight in the country at this time is Senator Borah going about in Mr. Bryan's old chautauqua duster and occasionally refreshing himself out of Mr. Bryan's milk bottle.

Automobile Responsible.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Philadelphia's experience, and that of other recent "world's fairs," indicate that the American people are less attracted by such expositions than they were 30 or 50 years ago. In this change the automobile probably has played the most conspicuous part. It has made it possible for families to plan and to take their

The Spirit of the Builder

By GLENN FRANK

A FEW years ago H. G. Wells was reported as predicting that the world was about to enter an era of fun; between then and 1940 or 1960, when he thought the nations would be tested by their next bloody tragedy, humanity would, he thought, look chiefly for fun.

In tracing out the various ways in which this quest for joy might express itself, he suggested that we might see an era of comic relief in architecture.

I thought, at the time, that Mr. Wells evidently had never inspected the houses of gingerbread decorations and tall towers that were built in America after the civil war or he would have realized that we, at least, have had our period of comic relief in architecture.

I have often wondered why men insisted on building those towers that disfigure so many American houses of half a century ago. They are obviously neither useful nor beautiful.

I suppose that if we had asked the men who built them why they built them they would have given various reasons.

They might have said that they thought that they were beautiful. They might have said that they were following a certain style of architecture.

But the psychologist would probably regard these reasons as excuses, reminding us of the adage that very often the better the excuse the worse the reason, and search for the real reasons that led men to build tall towers on their houses, although the towers were neither useful nor beautiful.

And I suspect that the psychologist would find that those tall towers were built because they answered, even if blunderingly, the call of two inner urges in man.

The urge of his egotism. The urge of his creativeness. Thorstein Veblen has reminded us that men spend conspicuously and build conspicuously because it gives them a sense of their own importance.

The tall tower of the house made the builder feel that he was a big man in a small town.

And then, again, man is endowed with the spirit of the builder. He likes to build for the sake of building.

I have a friend who has bought, in fairly rapid succession, five country estates. In each instance, he has built or remodeled a house at great trouble and expense, but the moment he has finished building and brought an estate into shape he loses interest in it, sells it, buys another, and goes through the process again. And he has had the time of his life doing it. He is simply a man in whom the creative spirit of the builder is highly developed. He has taste and tireless energy. But it was the same urge that led the men of 50 years ago to build tall and ugly towers on their houses.

vacations, or seek their recreation, when and as they please, without regard to special attractions which formerly brought out visitors by the thousands because of their inability to see elsewhere except at great expense so much of what the world contains.

Changed Atmosphere.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Noise, Noise, Noise!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our hearts go out in gratitude to Mr. Edwin S. Puller for his courageous letter on "unnecessary noises," for which this city is conspicuously faulty.

No people of refined taste or cultivated sensibilities could or would tolerate such uncivilized conditions. Add to them the intolerable nuisance of barking dogs kept right here in the heart of things and allowed to run in the street and bark us into nervous prostration and you have a condition here in the Capital City which would be a disgrace to a Hottentot village. A vote of thanks to Mr. Puller and more power to his elbow.

L. L. KAPLIN.
Washington, August 4.

WILLIS, OF OHIO.

Senator Willis, of Ohio, is one of the innocent bystanders to be hit by the explosion over the large campaign expenditures in Pennsylvania, writes Clinton W. Gilbert in the Philadelphia Ledger. Mr. Willis was one of the senators who voted to seat Senator Newberry, of Michigan, who was charged with having spent too much in the primary which nominated him for the senatorship.

As his vote was necessary to the seating of Mr. Newberry, he was permitted to shape the resolution in which the Senate plausibly declared itself against large expenditures in primaries. So Mr. Willis asserted it to be subversive of popular government to spend as much as $195,000 to carry a primary, but still voted that Mr. Newberry, who had spent that much, ought to be seated. It was a silly resolution on its face, and now it has come to plague the Ohio senator who is its author.

Two senators, Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, and Thaddeus Caraway, have already baited Mr. Willis about it, asking him to draw a resolution to fit the case of Pennsylvania. This fun at the Ohio senator's expense is not serious, except that it has started the issue that he must face in the Ohio campaign next fall, when the Democratic candidate, ex-Senator Pomeroy, points to his inconsistency in voting to seat the Michigan senator while condemning his campaign expenditures as dangerous to free institutions. If Mr. Willis had merely voted to seat Mr. Newberry, his doing so would have been forgotten by this time. But the resolution was so ridiculous as to be memorable. It is so easy to make game of the author of it that the Ohio senator will have an unhappy time on the stump.

TO ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

By HELEN CARTER.
The music of his songs was like A shepherd's lute, at eventide; It echoed sadly in our hearts When Israel, the poet, died.

The echo lingers, nor departs. But weaves itself into our hearts. It seems as though God must have sighed When Israel, the poet, died.

The Housekeeper

TOO warm to cook, too warm to work or play, too warm almost to live, so shall we have a picnic? At least there may be a breeze under some tree or near some remote stream, and a breeze is to be found there can be nothing amiss in having one's luncheon at hand that may be enjoyed along with the breeze. And let us see if there can't be some sort of a picnic minus practically all effort. Our appetites should not encourage us to overindulgence these summer days, and if the picnic is a light one that has spared the home-maker and therefore allowed her Sunday to be a holiday, too, no picnic will object. I am sure that ham, cold boiled, can be had at the corner store, and with ham many things may be concocted. If one wishes, a tenderloin of ham may be purchased and prepared today, or even a chicken made quite ready for the occasion, but cold cuts from the market will suffice, and little or no baking need be done on this occasion.

Your pie crust can be a "tough proposition" for a number of reasons, A. J., but I suspect that you handle it too much. The coldness of the water need not materially affect it, although cold water is an advantage especially when the weather is so warm that the shortening endeavors to reduce itself to a liquid on the trip from the icebox. In rolling it out do not try to make it into a little ball before applying the rolling pin. Toss just enough for the first crust onto the floured board and gently shape it with the hands, working it as little possible. In event the crust tears badly and there is nothing to do but roll it out again, spread it with butter after second rolling. This is an emergency remedy, and in spite of it, re-rolled pie crust may fall short of perfection.

We have for today a recipe for green tomato pickle that was sent us by a friend who has been a friend indeed, and likewise a friend in need, for it is not the first contribution that has come, nor yet the second. Thank you for your interest, G. G. H.—and this delicious recipe.

CAMP SWIMMING POOL IS OPENED TO CHILDREN

Arrangements Made by Congress Heights Citizens for Guard on Duty.

60 FROLIC ON FIRST DAY

The swimming pool at Camp Simms was opened yesterday for children of Congress Heights through arrangements with the District National Guard by the Congress Heights Citizens association. The pool will be open to children this month and a large part of September. A guard has been placed by the citizens association at the pool to protect the children. The pool is about 75 feet long, and at one point 10 feet deep, it is said. Arrangements were made with the national guard by Dr. Edward E. Richardson, president of the association. The guard will be at the pool from 9 a. m. until 11 p. m., and from 2 p. m. until 6 p. m. About 60 children took advantage of the opportunity to swim yesterday. The pool will not be open Sunday. The first of a series of four band concerts to be given every two weeks by the Washington Boy's Independent band was held last night on the open space at the corner of Nichols and Alabama avenues. The concert was postponed two weeks ago on account of rain. J. Leonard Kidwell directed the concert.

Confidence

THE public has a right to demand that products be perfected before they are offered it for sale.

And so AMOCO-GAS, the Original Special Motor Fuel, was subjected to the most rigid tests in the laboratory and on the road for years before it was placed on the market, and when the first gallon was finally sold to the motorist, it was a perfect fuel, with its years of experimentation behind it.

Since the first appearance of Amoco-Gas, imitations have appeared and disappeared—fuels hastily concocted and sold as motoring cure-alls, only to have their weaknesses proved at the expense of the public.

Because AMOCO-GAS has proven by years of successful service all the claims we have ever made for it, it has won the confidence of the public.

And this confidence is not only of words, but is backed up by an ever-increasing demand for our product on the part of an ever-increasing number of motorists.

CHANNEL SWIMMER NEW YORK ATHLETE OF GERMAN LINEAGE

Champion Is the Daughter of West Side Butcher;
Swam in Childhood.

CRAWL-STROKE STAR; BEAT MANY EXPERTS

Blamed Trainer for Failure
Last Year; Set Record,
Despite Defeat.

New York, Aug. 6 (By A. P.). Born and raised on the sidewalks of New York's westside, the daughter of a German butcher, Gertrude Ederle carried into her successful channel swimming attempt today the heritage of a sturdy physique and unswerving determination backed by training that has convinced experts she is the greatest woman swimmer of all times.

When Miss Ederle left amateur ranks a year ago for a professional career, she left a record of achievement in speed and stamina rivaled by few feminine aquatic stars and unsurpassed by one in a generation which has seen women's swimming develop at an astonishing pace.

"Trudie"—as she is called by her family and friends—learned to swim as soon as she could toddle into the surf of the Atlantic ocean off Highlands, N. J., where the Ederles had a summer cottage.

At the age of about 15 she joined the women's swimming association of New York and developed quickly under the tutelage of L. Deb Handley, coach of that organization.

Beat Many Experts:
Broad shouldered, of strong, muscular build, Miss Ederle quickly mastered the famous crawl stroke, which has revolutionized speed swimming in the past few years.

Her first bid for fame came three years ago in a 3-mile ocean race for the Joseph P. Day cup, when she won by defeating such stars as Helen Wainwright, then the all-around amateur champion, and Hilda James, the English champion.

She followed this by repeated victories at distances varying from 50 yards to a half mile. She shattered world's records right and left, six of them falling to her credit in one day's performance.

In preparation for her first attempt to swim the English channel last year, she swam from the Battery to Sandy Hook, a distance of 21 miles in seven hours, beating the men's record.

Set Channel Record.
Although frustrated abroad later, the American girl covered close to 30 miles in eight hours, in spite of rough water, setting a record for channel swimming before she was forced to quit.

On her return home Miss Ederle blamed her trainer, Jabez Wolff, partly for her failure, asserting he had her pulled out of the water when she was still able to go on. Wolff countered with the statement that Miss Ederle did not train properly for her trip.

This year, however, the American girl put herself under the direction of Thomas W. Burgess, one of the five men who have swam the channel.

Ederle Brothers Give Out Sausages as Sister Wins

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Aug. 6. Business was not going on as usual late today at the packing house of Ederle Brothers, a one-story plant in Amsterdam avenue, between Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth streets. Just before 5 o'clock, the word flashed: Ederle's sister, Gertrude, had won the English channel.

John and Ernest Ederle, brothers of the channel conqueror, that Trudie had accomplished the swim. They ran through their plant telling their 27 employees.

Out in the street, bedecked with flags, a crowd of neighbors had been waiting for word from Trudie, and when John and Ernest came out, the telegram in one hand and huge hunks of bologna in the other, they knew she had made good.

The youngsters, who knew more or less what Trudie was doing, were particularly gratified with the immense quantities of Ederle Brothers' sausages which were strewn about with an opulent hand.

Then the brothers, just for a change, retired to the smokehouse in the basement of the plant, where they and their employees had a carnival on sausages.

Self-Styled Indian Chief Is Arrested

John Lone Star, who says he is chief of an Indian tribe near Tulsa, Okla., and a roomer at 105 D street northeast, was arrested yesterday by Lieut. Sidney Marks, of the Ninth precinct, and Policeman James Tolson, on three charges of false pretenses. The "chief," police said, wrote letters to residents of the neighborhood requesting loans until he received a check from the government.

He is said to have promised to repay double the amount. Police said that he is not an Indian chief, that he is John W. Hayes, of this city, and that he never will receive a check from the Indian commissioner.

Phonograph, Playing Jazz, Helps Miss Ederle to Win

Didn't Mind the High Waves, She Says—Never Felt Inclined to Give Up—Glad She Brought Honor to the United States.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Kingsdown, England, Aug. 6.—"I am overjoyed at my success," Gertrude Ederle said tonight after her successful swim. "It was the ambition of my life and I coveted no other prize. I was nervous before I started but once I got going all fear left me and I felt in perfect form. I didn't mind the high-feting of the waves which troubled me far less than I had expected and at no time did I feel inclined to give up. I was particularly pleased because I have brought the honor to America."

Miss Ederle paid high tribute to William Burgess, her trainer. She said she didn't feel in the least exhausted although the water and the winds were very cold toward the end of the swim. In place of the jazz band, which accompanied Miss Ederle last year, was a phonograph that turned out plenty of jazz. It had the advantage that it could not become seasick as the members of the jazz band did last year.

As an alternative to the phonograph the little group on the Alsace took to singing songs and giving "three cheers for Gertrude" to keep the channel aspirant in buoyant spirits. The favorite songs were, "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "The Sidewalks of New York," and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." Occasionally the swimmer indicated her lightheartedness by keeping time between strokes with her hands.

MISS EDERLE SWIMS CHANNEL; MAKES BEST TIME ON RECORD

her for any one to save her should she collapse and sink. Great waves were sweeping over the Alsace.

Burgess, who tried the channel swim 32 times before he succeeded, demanded that this mermale, making but her second attempt, be ordered out. He declared he would no longer accept responsibility for her safety and insisted Pop Ederle sign a paper releasing him from all claims and criticism should she be lost beneath the waves.

Ederle was adamant, however, pointing out that Trudie had yet to object to continuing on. Margaret sided with him. All others on the tug were agreed that achieving her ambition on this try was now humanly impossible. Finally some one, losing his head, shouted from the Alsace, "Come out, girl; come out!"

"What For?" Says She.
Trudie, unaware of the excited debate aboard the tug, heard and turned in amazement to ask, "What for?"

Never once changing from her powerful, long crawl stroke, and resting only the few times she took nourishment, Trudie plied indomitably on and on, to vindicate her proud parents' confidence in her, and at no time showed any sign of weakening.

She wore out three capable swimmers who took the water at intervals to swim beside and lend encouragement to her—first, Ishak Helmy, the giant Egyptian channel aspirant; then her sister, Margaret, although she was able to return to the water again in the late stages of the epochal performance, and also Lillian Cannon, the Baltimore swimmer, who, with a fine show of sportsmanship, swam beside her and chatted gaily with her rival.

When the going was very rough, and she completely ran away from Louis Timson, an English swimmer, who had come out from Dover in a small motorboat to cheer Trudie on.

Suffers No Seasickness.
Both Helmy and Miss Cannon became slightly seasick, but not so Gertrude. When the terrific wind and vicious seas made vocal communication from tug to swimmer impossible, cheering messages were written on a blackboard and the board lowered over the side for Trudie to read. These included messages of encouragement from America received by wireless aboard the Alsace.

As the tug began to settle over the turbulent waters and a heavy rain set in, when Trudie was about a mile off the English coast and swimming down the third tide of her journey, the cold, racing sweep of water downed her, and as a wave came talking and settled down to the serious business of finishing this brutal task.

By now the tug captain and Miss Ederle's trainer had put down their fears and recovered somewhat from the water. Margaret and Ernest Ederle, who had been on the tug, came out to her, and when John and Ernest came out, the telegram in one hand and huge hunks of bologna in the other, they knew she had made good.

The youngsters, who knew more or less what Trudie was doing, were particularly gratified with the immense quantities of Ederle Brothers' sausages which were strewn about with an opulent hand.

Map shows Miss Ederle's approximate course across the Channel about an hour before she touched the sands of England the Morline's wireless had failed and, having nothing better to do, the correspondent, in his enthusiasm over his countrywoman's victory over the relentless sea, had gone overboard in his street attire and swam in to personally congratulate her.

Trudie said nothing while she was on shore being lionized by the welcoming thousands for a brief period. As she explained later she was too bewildered by it all to think of anything to say. But when she entered a rowboat to board the Alsace to race to Dover to spend the night, she said:

"Well, Pop, I guess I get my roadster."

Pa Ederle had promised her the gift of an automobile if she succeeded in negotiating the channel. He can well afford it, for he had wagered $25,000 against $175,000 through Lloyds that she would succeed.

Is Glad to Rest.
When she returned to the tug and clambered nimbly aboard, she said:

"I'm all right, but I cannot realize what it's all about. I guess everything's all right, so long as I made it. I'm the first woman to swim it. I am not!"

She refused solid food and wanted only to rest on a couch in the cabin as the tug proceeded at full speed for Dover. After a time she demanded pineapple to ease her swollen and severely cut tongue. Her face was slightly swollen, too, and she was very cold and sleepy, but cheerful and seemingly far from exhaustion.

"I can freeze now," she remarked with a broad grin.

Aboard the Alsace there was a delirium of joy.

Margaret went overboard before a rowboat was lowered. "Pop," Ederle danced a jig of joy. Burgess was all but overcome by the excitement of the climax he had done so much to make possible.

Although the aged Briton who swam the channel in 1911 misjudged Trudie's mettle in her darkest hour, his knowledge of winds and tides and conditioning for the channel swim had meant very much, indeed, to Gertrude, and in a general way she followed all the way the course he had outlined weeks ago. She had traversed almost identically the route he had chosen, up to the eighth hour. Thereafter she wavered to the east and then to the north of her intended course, due chiefly to the stormy seas that delayed her approach to the dread Goodwin sands, the Waterloo of countless would-be channel swimmers.

Course Is Changed.
Burgess had planned for her to finish her swim very near to Dover, to the Folkestone side of that port, but when she was carried farther north than expected and when it was apparent she was yet strong enough to breast the southwesterly third tide slantwise and cut into King's Down, the wise trainer shunted Trudie in that way. Moreover, the tide veered to the east about 9 o'clock and Burgess was quick to have Trudie snap up this advantage.

Cortices, the tug captain, also gave Trudie truly marvelous assistance by his expert accompaniment of the swimmer. He is the only man in the world who has piloted both a successful man and a successful woman across the channel. Besides the American girl, he piloted Charles Toth, of Boston, who accomplished the feat in 1923 in 16 hours 40 minutes. He was the last person to make the crossing in the water until Miss Ederle today.

En route to Dover, Trudie declared:

"I can't yet realize I did it. I probably never will fully realize it."

Burgess kissed her again on the cheek, as he did just before she entered the water in France. He wept for joy and was speechless for some time from his great emotion.

"Wore Off" Cramps.
To those who observed the champion trotting upon the King's Down beach it seemed incredible that she could just have ended

GIRL'S MOTHER HAPPY OVER CHANNEL VICTORY

Mrs. Ederle Broadcasts Joy
When Told of Daughter's Great Swim.

MRS. BARRETT PRAISES

New York, Aug. 6.—"I am the happiest woman in the world," declared Mrs. Henry Ederle late this afternoon in her home at Highlands, N. J., when news was flashed to her that her daughter had safely and successfully swum the English channel.

Her belief in Gertrude's victory had not flagged throughout the day, even when earlier reports said the girl's chances were slim because of unfavorable tides.

"Gertrude will make the swim if only they allow her to remain in the water," she insisted. "And I know her father will not allow them to take her out until there is no more hope."

Shortly after the good news was received Mrs. Ederle made this statement, which was broadcast by station WNYC: "I am the happiest woman in the world to think that my daughter swam the English channel, but then I knew she would do it, knowing the kind of a girl she is. I knew she would have made better time but for the fact that the last 4 miles the wind and tide were against her."

Another mother had something to say about it, too. Only last Tuesday Mrs. Clara Barrett, of New Rochelle, suffered a similar strain. Her daughter, Clarabelle Barrett, did not quite cross the channel, but her 40-mile swim against fog, wind and tide was proclaimed the finest performance yet given by a woman.

"I extend my heartiest congratulations to Miss Ederle and her family," Mrs. Barrett said tonight. "I think she did a marvelous thing. But of course she did not have as much to combat as my daughter did."

Asked if she would like to see her daughter make another try, Mrs. Barrett said, "Oh, that's up to Clarabelle."

most necessary purchases, in the hope of compelling the government to revise the religious regulations. Many business houses, whose business already was depressed because of the religious situation, developed, say that they are beginning to feel the reduction or cessation of purchases.

Americans Visit Bishop.

A group of American educators and religious, business and professional men, headed by Dr. Alvin W. Taylor, national executive of the social service commission of the Church of the Disciples, yesterday called at the Catholic episcopate and interviewed Bishop Diaz, the secretary.

The bishop told the visitors that the clergy in Mexico had been made to appear rebellious merely because they were attempting to fulfill certain duties of conscience. He denied that the Catholic clergy was opposing the laws of the country. He said that on the contrary they were attempting to guard its divine laws, which must be preserved at all costs.

Government agents who recently took charge of the Episcopal church of San Jose de Gracia because the Mexican rector failed to register with the municipal authorities, have returned the church to the rector. The church is owned by the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States.

Aged Archbishop Ill.

Mgr. Mora y del Rio, aged archbishop of Mexico, still is being treated with a slight fever. He is exceedingly weak, his feeble strength having been exhausted during the strenuous weeks preceding the date when the religious regulations went into force. Physicians say his condition is not such as to justify alarm.

Gen. Anaya, military commander in Puebla, reports that Father Juan Marin, a Catholic priest in charge of the Church of Santa Inez, notified the authorities of his readiness to adhere to the government's religious regulations and register with the municipal authorities. The church is owned by that his church be returned to him.

Dispatches from Pachuca report that one priest has announced his acceptance of the regulations and that four others are expected to accept them. The priest has previously been reported as accepting the government's religious regulations.

U. S. SENDS NEW NOTE ON MEXICO OIL LANDS

bassador Sheffield before he started home on his annual leave next week.

The last communications with the Mexican government in relation to land and petroleum laws as they affect the rights of American citizens in Mexico were exchanged nearly four months ago. At that time it was indicated that the discussion had resulted in a relatively satisfactory understanding as to the major points involved, but that there remained a few minor questions to be threshed out.

Since then the Mexican government has promulgated a decree supplementing the regulations originally put out for the enforcement of the new oil law. Presumably the American point of view with regard to it is included in the communication Ambassador Sheffield has presented to the foreign office.

It was made clear at the department that the new note has nothing to do with the religious crisis in Mexico and is confined strictly to a discussion of American rights which are or might be jeopardized by the petroleum and land laws.

Heart Beat of Flower Revealed to Scientists

Oxford, England, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, the famous Hindu scientist, who says that plants have heart pulsations, caused something of a sensation before the British association today by revealing the heart beats of a snapdragon by means of a delicate apparatus.

His apparatus, part of which was introduced to the assembled scientists for the first time, recorded the action of the flower's "heart."

Sir Jagadis also demonstrated that nervous reactions in plants are stimulated by drugs in the same way as human beings.

MOTHER SLAIN, EYES OUT; SON, BESIDE BODY, HELD

Tells Police She "Died Twice" and That He Slashed Her to Cleanse Her Sins.

IS ALLEGED TO BE INSANE

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Etta S. Bearse, divorced wife of County Treasurer Fred A. Bearse, was murdered and her body horribly mutilated in her home here early today. Richard C. Bearse, 26 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bearse, found by the police at his mother's side, was placed under arrest, charged with murder.

He told a rambling and incoherent story in response, which indicated, police say, that he was mentally unbalanced. Mrs. Bearse's death apparently was due to strangulation.

A neighbor telephoned the police, reporting sounds of violence in the Bearse home. Officers forced their way into the house and found young Bearse was seated on the floor by his mother's body, moaning and shouting incoherently.

He said that his mother "had died twice in the night" and that he had revived her both times. After the second time, he said, her eyes "looked queer" and he removed them. Other mutilations of the body he explained as having been made "to cleanse her soul from sin."

The young man had lately returned from a week at a shore resort. County Treasurer Bearse said today that he saw his son late yesterday and at that time he complained of not sleeping nights.

Mr. and Mrs. Bearse were divorced fourteen years ago, but Mrs. Bearse and her son had continued to occupy the house owned by Mr. Bearse. Mrs. Bearse was between 50 and 55 years old.

3 NATIONS THREATEN TO INVADE BULGARIA

the impending demarche, denying the ultra-aggressive character of the same time an official bulletin declares that all three nations will be sent to the League of Nations.

Throughout Central Europe the people are watching the growing war clouds with the greatest anxiety. It is generally felt that Central Europe has not been so near the precipice since July, 1914. It is feared that a Balkan conflict may spread to wider precincts.

Italy is involved in the Balkans, neither France nor England can pretend disinterestedness in the eventuality of war. Significant, however, is the move of the Roumanian government in concentrating large contingents of troops on the Bessarabian frontier. This, obviously, is a precaution against an attack from Russia.

Another interesting sidelight is the trip of the Hungarian Minister of the Interior, Ivan Rakovsky, to Transylvania, to visit the former Hungarian foreign Minister, Count Nicholas Banffy, who recently assumed Roumanian citizenship. This is said to be connected with the long maturing plans for a Roumanian-Hungarian rapprochement.

With the possibility of war against Bulgaria, friendship with Hungary would be invaluable to Roumania, as it always has feared attacks from this quarter in case of war.

The greatest element of danger, however, is in the temper of the Jugoslavia people, who have been rattling the sword and vied to use it. The sentiment being voiced with increased intensity in Jugoslavia is that there is no use in referring the country's troubles to the League of Nations, when one has a perfectly good army.

Princess Mafalda Now Mother of Son

Racconigi, Italy, Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Princess Mafalda of Italy, second daughter of the Italian sovereign and wife of Prince Philip of Hesse, gave birth today to a boy.

Mafalda, who is in her twenty-fourth year, was married to Prince Philip September 23, last, at the Italian royal castle in Racconigi. The prince is a nephew of the former German emperor. Contrary to custom, no Italian title was conferred on the bridegroom, and the boy born today will succeed to his father's title as Prince of Hesse.

DEEGAN, WOUNDED, FACES CHARGES HERE

Brother of Man Killed by Dry
Squad Here Shot Down in Baltimore.

William (Big Bill) Deegan, who was shot down and seriously wounded in Baltimore Thursday, will be brought back to Washington and required to answer several liquor warrants and two charges of assault if he recovers from the bullet wounds, Washington police asserted yesterday.

Big Bill is the brother of Charles C. Deegan, who was shot to death in an automobile on Florida avenue in a scuffle with police of Burlingame's flying squadron last October. The wounded man now is in Mercy hospital, where his mother, Mrs. A. M. Deegan, 2312 Ontario road northwest visited him yesterday.

With Benjamin Sadano, Deegan was called from a saloon in East Baltimore by five men in an automobile. He was shot. Sadano was dragged into the car, which was driven rapidly away. Later Sadano returned, saying the men had released him, unharmed, near Pimlico. He gave the Baltimore police a description of the men, but no arrests were made yesterday.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

Stop Acting!

DEAR Miss McDonald: You are such a good advice giver I wish you would give me a little.

When I first meet one I usually make a very good first impression upon them, but the queer part about it is that the impression I make last doesn't coincide with the first—no matter how hard I try. I find it nearly always happens with boys and girls my own age. I have talked it over several times with mamma and she says that it's just pure old selflessness (meaning, of course, that after I've known them a while my amiability wears thin), but I try to plead off sometimes and lay it to self-consciousness which I guess is just a more genteel form of the first.

Is self-consciousness bashfulness? If so, then if people would forget themselves—the "I" and "me" of it—they wouldn't be bashful.

Yesterday I had a "fit" with one of my best boy friends. He had a picture of me that I decided I didn't want him to have and proceeded to try different means to get it away from him. It was one he had taken himself and thought he had a right to keep. As soon as I got hold of it I tore it into bits and threw it down. Mamma said that was a very rude thing to do. What do you think?

Before this boy gave me the picture I began to think I wasn't going to get it, but really wasn't a bit angry, although I told him I didn't like him. After I got the picture then I tried to laugh it off, but he drove off with an injured air.

When I meet a boy I always feel pretty much at ease but the funniest part of it comes when I see him later—for then I feel embarrassed and either talk my head off or don't say anything and try to cover my self-consciousness up by being haughty. So what's wrong with me?

PERPLEXED.

I am going to tell you the real truth and then you will be cured. You are the type that likes to hold the stage. The boy senses that you are acting. It is this type that you have seen talking in public for the benefit of strangers without earshot or running noisily about a railroad station for no reason except to act. In recent years the movies have relieved us of thousands of these girls. They are all out in Hollywood starving to death. With you, when a boy loses interest you do something, anything to get his attention—now don't you? And it is fatal. The boy senses that you are acting—and he is only amused—which is always the end. Just stop being so important to yourself and first thing you know you'll mean a lot to others. Fact!

Conduct and Common Sense

REWARDS AND PUNISHMENTS.

By Anne Singleton.

THE subject of rewards and punishments is one to be approached cautiously. We all know that no child should be in anger, but should no child ever be given any sort of slap at all? Sometimes a tingling palm saves a badly burned one. Children have a great love of light and brightly dancing flames, and a warning in words does not always make an impression. If a hand has been fully stretched out after forbidden dangers, a smart slap might be as good a punishment as any. It is just what fate deals out to many of us elders.

Today, however, parents seem to have a leaning toward deprivations. To be sent to bed early, to be made to eat apart, to be kept in when others are playing on of doors, to be deprived of particular playthings for a given time, to be denied particular outings, picnics, holiday excursions, are all punishments which should teach children that self-indulgence demands its price. But they should be made to understand this clearly beforehand, if possible; that is, if they can be warned, one should warn them. "If you throw your sister's ball out of the window, Tommy, I shall take your popgun away from you for the rest of the week." If Tommy wants to test this, let him do so, and don't give back the popgun one minute before the time.

Rewards for good conduct are fine incentives to order, cleanliness and perseverance. They should be ribbons, medals, badges or prizes that have no tangible value. They should follow upon good behavior. Nothing in the way of bribes beforehand should ever be given.

BEAUTY AND YOU

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THIS DIET?

By Viola Paris.

ONE of my friends who is stoutly determined to lose weight, asked me to criticize a diet that she had heard described and was about to try. Breakfast consisted of a lump of ice sucked slowly. Luncheon, at 2 o'clock, consisted of a green salad or a vegetable, dry toast, tea with lemon. At 5 o'clock, more tea with lemon; for dinner, lean meat and dry toast.

I don't think we have cause to be severely anxious. In general, about the harm that women can do to themselves by dieting. But there are poor diets, and the one outlined above is one of them. It does not contain enough of the foods that make for vitality and growth; nor does it do anything to promote elimination.

The lump of ice, sucked slowly was meant, I suppose, to allay the first pangs of hunger. It has no value so far as I can see. It would be far better to sip a glassful of hot water on arising. Some people can easily forego breakfast without harm, but most find it better to take something. Bran flakes with milk; or merely fresh fruit; a glass of buttermilk; orange juice and whole wheat toast—all of these are satisfying and are allowable for a reducing diet.

The luncheon of the diet in question is not bad, but the tea is unnecessary and tends to retard digestion. There is no great advantage in postponing the hour until 2, however. Five o'clock tea is not needed. If hungry one might have a glass of orangeade or some simple drink. But the dinner suggested is impossible. If meat is wanted, then let it by all means be lean, but why not furnish the really important part of the meal by adding fresh vegetables, cooked and raw, and fruit? These would not add to the hated pounds.

Be careful, in your dieting, that you do not eliminate entirely the important foods that provide vitamins and also a certain roughage. Luckily, these need not be fattening.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE OLD SAILOR TALKS.

There was action in the old days when I learned to love the sea.

There was beauty in the canvas which your turbines can't replace.

Oh, the liner is a lady, but she's not the girl for me.

For she's business-like and snappy and there's hardness in her face.

And I like to see my woman wear a little bit of lace.

There was poetry in sailing when the seas were running free.

There was music in the rigging when the wind began to blow.

But the liner, she is haughty, and she's not the girl for me.

She walks away from humble ships who try to say "hello!"

And like to have my woman, sort of friendly, don't you know.

It's all business now, is sailing, as I think you will agree.

With arrivals and departures just as regular as bed.

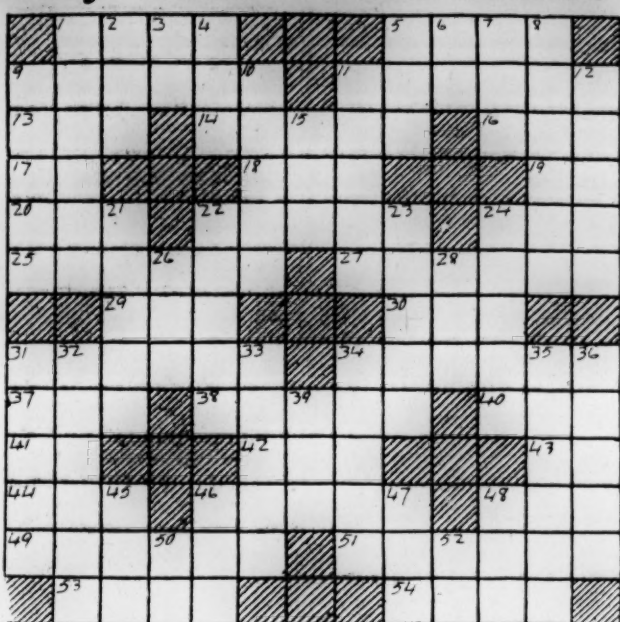

Oh, the liner is a lady, but she's not the girl for me.

She always shows about the same time the log is read.

And I'd rather have a woman with some nonsense in her head.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. W. A. EVANS

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service can not be answered.

PYORRHEA.

IN children the prevention of decay of teeth is very important. Children lose their teeth because of decay.

In adults the prevention of pyorrhea takes first place in importance. Adults lose their teeth because of this disease of the gums.

Pyorrhea is a local disease. For one thing, it is located in the gums; usually the general system is not involved. In the advanced cases there may be some evidence of absorption of bacteria or their poisons. The rule is that the poisons of pyorrhea drain away. There is more chance of absorption from an insignificant apical abscess (so-called), which does not and can not drain.

Furthermore, pyorrhea starts around a single tooth and for a long time is limited to one tooth. It spreads from tooth to tooth, just as smallpox spreads from person to person and from person to person.

It is even more localized than that; pyorrhea starts only in that part of the gum close to a tooth and only a limited zone at that. For instance, for a long time a man will have no pyorrhea except one area on the lingual side of one root of a molar tooth. For a long time there will be no unhealthy gum except, say, one-tenth of that around one tooth.

A reasonably intelligent man can make a reasonably correct diagnosis of pyorrhea. Let him go over his gums, both cheek and tongue surfaces, with his finger. Light pressure should be made just where the gum joins the tooth. There will be soreness on pressure over any pyorrhea area. The pyorrhea is just where the soreness is and nowhere else. If the disease is more pronounced, he will find the affected tooth can be rocked in its socket by taking it between two fingers.

Periodically there may be attacks of soreness and pain in the affected teeth and gums. During one of these attacks the affected tooth is sore and seems to strike the other teeth. The fact is that the infected, swollen tooth-bed lifts the tooth a little in its socket and does cause it to strike unduly. In the pyorrhea area, the gum is swollen, bluish in color, boggy in appearance, and does not seem to fit closely around the teeth. But the better guide for the patient is the soreness of and around the tooth. If he tries to judge of the gums by their appearance he is more liable to make mistakes.

In the later stages of pyorrhea, pus can be seen oozing from the gums by the side of the teeth, the teeth are loose, and the gums are bluish and boggy. But there is no possibility of mistake as to the pyorrhea at that stage. The problem then is to determine whether the disease has been caused by some mineral poison or is being kept up and made worse by such poison. Back of a pyorrhea may lie mercurial poisoning or lead poisoning, or something of that character. Treatment of pyorrhea is a matter for the dentist. The man with the disease must do his part, however, in keeping his teeth and gums clean and in carrying out the instructions given him by his dentist.

BABY REFUSES MILK.

S. V. Y. writes: My baby is 11 months old today, weighs 20 pounds, and is very active. I give her three meals a day—twice cereals and once vegetables. She takes those very well, but she will not drink any milk. She drinks only one bottle of a day (7 ounces).

1. Do you think she is much underweight?

2. How can I make her drink milk?

3. Should I give her cod liver oil?

REPLY.

1. No. Weight is right.

2. Give it to her in various ways, such as milk soups, puddings, custards, buttermilk, milk powder, butter, cream on cereal, milk toast, our milk, milk and orange juice and many other ways.

3. Not now. Keep her out in the sunlight and air instead.

MEMOIRS OF BRYAN SHOW HIS GREATNESS IN ORATORY SURPASSES WRITING SKILL

The dramatic exit of William Jennings Bryan from the scene of his last oratorical labors at Dayton, Tenn., was followed in short order by publication of various lives and memoirs, most of which added little to his fame or to the sum total of knowledge about this man.

The historian would turn with greater confidence to "The Memoirs of William Jennings Bryan" (John C. Winston, Philadelphia), published under the aegis of his devoted wife shortly after his death.

It is soon apparent in this book that while Bryan might justly claim the title of "orator," as an author he falls far short of achievement. Even the 100 pages confessedly Mr. Bryan's Mrs. Bryan says she "polished up." As some one has succinctly said: "From Bryan's first battle to his last plea against evolution, his pen was only the servant of his mouth."

One thing is to be noted in his memoirs. They lack the utter frankness which is the chief charm of the successful autobiographer.

Oratory is Passion.

If one were asked to describe Bryan and limited to one word, that word would be "orator." Oratory was the keynote to his character, the passion of his life. He took to religion and to politics as naturally as a duck takes to water. His father was a Baptist and a politician, his mother a Methodist and a good wife, who joined the Baptist Church in order to have spiritual communion with her husband.

At the age of 14, William Jennings joined the Cumberland Presbyterian church which was Armenian in principle and Presbyterian only in church government. William was a faithful Sunday school scholar. Among Presbyterians, he was Presbyterian, among Methodists a Methodist, among Baptists a Baptist.

His father, a Baptist, while filling the office of circuit judge, owned a good farm and saw to it that every preacher in the town including the Catholic priest received a load of hay every fall, so young Bryan received all the benefits which in this life do accompany and flow from religion without ever having experienced the frenzy and fire of the soul which comes from religious ecstasy. William was never truly converted until he came under the ministry of S. S. Hamill, the great eloquist.

In their unseemly haste to get the Bryan memoirs into the market while the marketing was good, the publishers failed to get the real name of this important man which was not Hamilton, but Hamill. S. S. Hamill, author of the "Science of Eloquence and Oratory." Nothing could have been further from Mr. Bryan's mind than to lack in appreciation of his old preceptor. Many times and oft in the zenith of his popularity, the living Bryan acknowledged his obligation to him and on the occasion of Prof. Hamill's death Mr. Bryan wrote with his own hand a glowing tribute to him which was published in the Commoner.

Hamill is Meant.

Mr. Bryan's memoirs were written for time and not eternity, and those who came after him should have had more careful proofreaders.

On page 87 we have Mr. Bryan's description of his instructor. "I digress here to say that I received the usual instruction in public speaking. Prof. Hamill was our instructor. He was a large man with a strong face and a piercing eye. He rather leaned to the dramatic and recommended dramatic pieces to us. I rather preferred the oratorical style, and the story goes on to give Mr. Bryan's testimony to the ability of his old teacher. All of this is a fair description of Prof. Hamill, and as for Prof. Hamill there was no such person."

On page 82 the memoirs quote Mr. Bryan "Under the Lure of the College Prize." "I did not like dramatic pieces, but at the earnest solicitation of my instructor, in rhetoric I took Bernardo del Corbis for my freshman declamation."

Mr. Bryan goes on to tell about the vivid dream he had in which he saw a hand write on a blackboard the name of William Jennings Bryan. He won the second prize, but could not for the life of him see who had won the first. The memoirs tell us that the dream came true that Bryan won the second prize and received $10 with which he purchased an Oxford Bible with a concordance and a volume of Shakespeare.

His dream had told him exactly what books he would buy, and it was carried out to the letter. As for the name of his instructor in rhetoric the memoirs are silent. It was S. S. Hamill, who was also his instructor in English. On page 91 the memoirs say "My speech on justice began 'Plutarch tells us that men entertain our sentiments concerning the gods. They fear them for their power, respect them for their intelligence and love them for their justice.'"

That speech reads as well as any that Mr. Bryan ever made. Who taught the young man Bryan how to speak? "Trippingly upon the tongue," S. S. Hamill.

Traps Opponents.

On page 250 of the memoirs, under the caption "Growth of Oratorical Power," Mrs. Bryan gives her account of Mr. Bryan's prowess in election and oratory.

Speaking of the first race for Congress in which the stage was set for a joint debate between the gifted Bryan and his Republican opponent, we quote from Mrs. Bryan: "These debates interested me more than any form of discussion. Knowing both sides, Mr. Bryan was able to set little traps for his opponents. When he had the opening speech he would deliberately seem to leave a loop hole, the enemy would seize upon the weakness only to find a danger lurking within, for his closing speech would clamp down the argument like the mouth of a steel trap. The neatness of his work may be shown in the closing speech of his

THE GLAMOUR OF BRITISH COLUMBIA. By H. Glynne Ward (The Century Company, New York.)

This is more than a travel book and instead is a thrilling narrative of the adventures of a courageous and sport-loving woman who dared to leave the confines of the beaten paths and wander into the Canadian west. There is much of the aspect of this great undeveloped country that our own Western pioneers might have told and written about.

Her way led her through a vast empire between the Pacific coast and the Canadian Rockies, abounding with beauties of wilderness and explored as yet still largely unexplored. Few tourists really learn to know what this province is like for they make the journey from the great divide to the coast with all the comfort and speed of modern traveling conveniences and never turn from the lanes pointed out to them.

The author of this book swung herself from the fast-moving train to investigate wild spots or a flag stop sidings. In this manner she really met the scattered and interesting people who make up the population of this country.

She now numbers among her friends trappers, lumbermen and salmon fishers, and knows many little human interest tales of life on these outposts of civilization which has made her book a really living volume of a beautiful country with human nature.

The most interesting chapter in the book is the graphic description of the history and condition of the famous Yukon Telegraph Trail begun in 1864 and abandoned after it had been carried 1,777 miles but reopened in the gold rush to the Klondike of 1898. It now keeps Dawson in the Yukon in telegraphic communication with the outside world. The sentinels of nine log cabins 30 miles apart with two men in each cabin are faithfully pictured in this book. In these cabins the eighteen men keep faithful watch without contact with the outside world except for a pack train of horses and mules that comes through each midsummer, or a prospector or Indian happening by.

KING OF DREAMS. By G. R. Warmington (George H. Doran and Co., New York.)

This story is built about a vivid dream based upon the facts of Egyptian and Biblical history. There is power and knowledge in the text and the action is very dramatic and exciting.

The Prince of the Lost House of Egypt is in love with the Greek maiden he had snatched from the waters of the lake, with a love only second to that of his love for Egypt. He listened to the rumors of another rising Prince in Galilee and started out to seek an alliance with him. This Prince of Heaven, whom the rumors from distant Galilee stated stood alone against Rome, had a fascination for Imathes, the Egyptian Prince, and the story of the meeting of the noble of Egypt and of Prince of Heaven is told in strikingly vivid words, suggestive of the great dramatic moments in Ben Hur.

MODISH MITZI

Mitzi May Be Followed—By a Dark Young Man

By Jay V. Jay

Mitzi, you haven't even begun to pack yet and we have to leave in an hour," says Dad to hurry Mitzi along. Mitzi is wondering how she can squeeze the three hats she bought in Seattle into the hat box that already contains two. Polly wears a cape coat with a very swishy cape, pleated. Mitzi wears a dress with puffed sleeves below the elbow which are embroidered. Aunt Sophia has on her traveling hat of felt. It has a high crown, which is crushed to a becoming shape. Dad is wondering how many things they have left out of their bag this time, as he usually carries the left-overs.

Mitzi got to the train a little bit early. The reason was the young man who came to say goodbye to her. Mitzi wears a very smart hat of felt with a silver ornament on the side. Her dress is very smart and has a new and very odd collar ornamented with contrasting material and gold thread. "This is not really good-bye," says the young man, "because only this morning I found it will be necessary to go East on a business trip—very soon."

Dad has arranged for their next stop at Omaha. This is a turn in a homeward direction, and while Dad, Mitzi, Polly and Aunt Sophia are reluctant to leave the coast, they feel there are so many more things to see that they should keep moving. So, very soon, Omaha!

NATIONALS RALLY IN SIXTH TO WIN AT DETROIT, 12-8

Two Survive Muny Golf Tourney

Kauffman, Pittsburgh, Surprises by Win Over Walsh.

Bolstad, Minneapolis, Also Advances to Finals Today.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Lester Bolstad, of Minneapolis, will meet Carl Kauffman, of Pittsburgh, tomorrow over the Grover Cleveland Park links, with the national public links championship at stake.

The youthful two-headed Minneapolis star won his way into the finals today by defeating William Wallace, Chicago, and Stanley Ford, Detroit. The tall and lanky Pittsburgh representative eliminated Nick O'Donofrio, New York, and Richard Walsh, former public links champion, also of the metropol-

The semifinals had been trying weather conditions for a short time today, when a miniature hurricane blew up and was followed by a shower. The wind was so strong for a time that the players could not control their tee and approach shots, and even the putting was adversely affected.

THE feature match of the day was the 18-hole struggle between Kauffman and Walsh. Kauffman was steady all the way, except at the short par three ninth, where he played a bad niblick shot from a trap and required a five.

He shot a 73, two over par. Walsh was one down at the end of the first nine holes and then squared the match at the eleventh when he sank a long putt for a birdie 3. Kauffman's par 4 on the thirteenth man the lead again and he held it to the end.

Walsh missed a birdie 3 on the sixteenth by an inch. The New York man nearly lost at the seventeenth when he was stymied, but he succeeded in halving and the match went the halving.

On the basis of his performance against Ford, Bolstad is conceded little chance of winning.

Sloppy work by Ford on the fourth hole, where he took three putts and let Bolstad halve it with him, gave Bolstad the lead that he hung to for the rest of the nine.

COMING home, both played erratically, Ford having a five and a six on the par four eleventh and twelfth holes, and then turning in a birdie on the difficult thirteenth, where Bolstad took a six.

Just as they finished the fourteenth hole in a pair of fives the storm came up and both tee shots from the fifteenth failed to make the green. Bolstad got his approach near enough to the cup for the par figures, giving him a commanding lead with his opponent dormie three.

On the sixteenth, Ford took a par four to Bolstad's five, but Bolstad took the seventeenth and the match.

Pirates Lose Wright And Down Braves, 5-4

Boston, Mass., Aug. 6 (By A. P.).—Although Pittsburgh defeated Boston, 5 to 4, here today, gaining a three out of four edge on the Braves in the current series, the Pirates lost the services, for a few days at least, of Glenn Wright. The Pirate shortstop injured his right leg when he slid into second after a long double in the seventh inning. He was current series, the Pirates' position but it was believed that the injury was not serious. The Braves reached Yde for nine hits, but clever fielding kept ten men stranded on the sacks.

WASH. POST-BELLEVILLE COLLYER

Kilter Given As Saratoga Special

Scapa Flow Has Third at Mercy, Asserts Handicapper.

Preference Is Sent Along as Best at Coney Island.

By BERT E. COLLYER.

HASTE. Yes, ho, and a bucket of blood. Today is the day and the place the Saratoga handicap at Saratoga. Also, for your information, Sande will be in the pilot-house. In addition to the above I might also add Trainer Keen's has his charge turned to concert pitch. Will go on the head end, at the rise of the barrier and will never be headed. Such is the comment appended by Walter Pearce, who is in charge of the staff at the Spa. We have the answer to all this gab in your lily white mitt.

ROCKMAN, which showed a sterling effort last night, is the contender with DRESS PARADE and FLIGHT OF TIME right bang up. The third looks like a gift to SCAPA FLOW—the Man o' War whirlwind uncovered opening day. Watch him beat the barrier again close second with CHANCE SHOT, with Sande up knocking at the door. If you are a real gambler, I suggest you have a ticket on the latter—three ways. And dat's dat.

Adolph slips me his private special in the day's opener. It is none other than KILTER, who you imagine a Dutchman wearing kilts—neither can I.

Coney Island is not to be overlooked in the matter of specials. "Little Johnny" sends PREFERENCE. Also lamp the gall by appendage. "This is a real runner; will out-break this field and they will never get near him." Now a "tip" is as good as a kick in the slats any day. Take this one on the run and shake every last nickel out of the iron man.

MARY JANE and SINCERELY for what is left. The latter seems to be of the improving sort. "Lucky Mose" Goldblatt has a double "ace" in the ARCADE and TEAK. He should be able to win with either. Listen, bo. This is not a place to unbelt unless you know. Also up to the moment, I haven't seen the right money show.

LEK O. COTNER is right on edge and has an outside chance to spill the trifolios. For the seventh the "word" is ROILED STOCKING. You have the tip for what it is worth.

Get-away day at Washington park, where a queer bird of how wove, have performed. I have it ROMP is the real jam. Don't blame me. More anon.

Severe sunburn caused intense pain
Skin so sore could not touch it
Resinol heals

Seven Mile, Ohio, Feb. 13:—"I am a farmer and am out-of-doors all my working hours. During harvest time last year, I became badly sunburned about the face, neck and arms. They were so irritated and pained so intensely I could hardly stand anything touching them. I tried various remedies, but nothing did me any good until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. I was relieved by the first application and by the time the first jar of ointment and cake of soap were gone my sunburn had vanished. I am always a booster for Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment." KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS MAY MAKE CAPITAL HEADQUARTERS SITE

Convention, Meeting in Chicago Next Week, Will Pass Upon Selection.

$1,500,000 MARBLE BUILDING PROPOSED

Fact That Order Was Founded in This City Held as Attraction.

Washington, the birthplace of the Knights of Pythias, will be selected as the city for the site of the proposed permanent international headquarters of the order, according to preliminary indications. The headquarters proposed will be a marble structure and cost approximately $1,500,000.

The Knights of Pythias will meet in Chicago next week in convention and there definitely decide on the city where this structure will be built. For some time the grand lodge of the District, through its representatives, has been waging a vigorous campaign urging the selection of the Nation's Capital and they now feel that their efforts will not be unrewarded.

The representatives point to the fact that Washington is the logical place for the headquarters. Four hundred national and international organizations have headquarters here, more than in any other city in the world are situated here, the wealth of opportunities afforded here for publicity and research for fraternal organizations, and the cradle of Pythianism, 914 E street northwest, is situated here, are a few of the attractions offered by the representatives.

Proposed in Toronto.

Two years ago at the convention in Toronto, Canada, the question of establishing an international headquarters came up and five past supreme chancellors of the organization were appointed to decide on the site. The decision of the five will be made known at the convention, and it is understood Washington is highly regarded as their final selection.

The convention will bring thousands of members of the organization to Chicago, and promises to be one of the greatest held by that organization. Sessions will be held in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Nationally prominent persons are scheduled to address the sessions.

The organization was instituted during the closing period of the Civil war, February 19, 1864, in the house on E street, and today embraces members not only in this country but Canada, Alaska, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands, numbering 800,000. Two Presidents, Harding and McKinley, were active members.

$3,000,000 District Budget Cut Expected

Three million dollars was the guess hazarded around the District building yesterday as the amount the bureau of the budget would order the commissioners to pare from the 1928 local estimates.

Department heads asked for $48,000,000. The commissioners reduced that total to $42,000,000, which they say can be raised, taking into account increased valuation of taxable property in 1928 without increasing the tax rate above the $1.80 per $100 fixed for the current year. Last year the budget estimator allowed by the bureau of the budget were $36,250,000.

Dance at Beaver Dam Arranged for Tonight

The largest dance of the season at the new Beaver Dam club will be held tonight. Officers of the City club completed arrangements yesterday, according to announcement of H. J. Odenthal, executive secretary.

Alvin Hall, director of the bureau of engraving and printing, and Mrs. Hall will preside as host and hostess. Guests of honor will include H. Preston Dawson and John J. Deviny, assistant director of the bureau; Martin Leese and Representative Frederick Zihlman, of Maryland. The City club synopsists will play.

Woman Employee Held On Larceny Charge

Mrs. Clara Dillard, 1272 New Hampshire avenue northwest, was held for the grand jury by Judge Macdonald in police court yesterday on charges of theft of silk linings from the fur shop of Dave Danov, 641 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, where she was employed. Bond was fixed at $500. Mrs. Dillard pleaded not guilty.

Danov became so excited while being cross-examined that Judge Macdonald found it necessary to tell him that if he did not become quiet he would send him into the cell room.

$20,000 Suit Based on Fall.

Lee C. Tennis filed suit yesterday in circuit court against Edwards & Zanner, tenants, and Sidney J. Hamilton, subtenant, at 704 Seventh street northwest, to recover $20,000 damages for alleged personal injuries. Through Attorneys Hutchinson & Carter, the plaintiff, who rented from Hamilton, says that November 9, 1924, he fell through a trap door into the cellar in the dark.

Wanderlusters to Dine.

The Washington Wanderlusters club will hold a dinner in their clubhouse at Franklin Park, Va., tonight from 5 until 7 o'clock. Mrs. John Boyle will act as hostess.

Dougherty Stresses Need for Engineers

More men with engineering training are needed in public service, Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty said yesterday at a luncheon given in his honor at the University club by the Washington alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The new commissioner is an alumnus of that school.

Prof. F. H. Newell, former head of the United States reclamation service, presided. Other speakers were George A. Ricker, Washington representative of the Portland Cement association; Maj. W. E. R. Covell, assistant engineer commissioner; Charles W. Elliot 3d, and George K. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards. Other guests were Maj. Carey H. Brown, assistant to Maj. U. S. Grant 3d, and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, assistant engineer commissioner.

DR. CLYDE M. GEARHART ORDERED TO GIVE BOND

Dentist Required to Furnish $3,000 Guarantee He Will Not Leave City.

CITED IN DIVORCE SUIT

Justice Jennings Bailey in equity court yesterday directed United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder to arrest Dr. Clyde M. Gearhart, Washington dentist, residing at the Army and Navy club, and to require him to furnish a $3,000 writ of ne exeat bond to guarantee that he will not leave the city until the petition for limited divorce filed by Mrs. Ethel H. Gearhart, 1868 Columbia road northwest, is disposed of. Dr. Gearhart was one of 103 persons who were injured in the Knickerbocker theater disaster of January 28, 1922.

The writ was issued on the complaint of Mrs. Gearhart that her husband had threatened to place himself beyond the jurisdiction of the court if she filed suit.

Dr. Gearhart is charged principally with excessive drunkenness and cruelty. The plaintiff was married March 24, 1923. Through Attorneys Roger J. Whiteford and Henry C. Clark she charges that Dr. Gearhart drinks almost constantly, and when under the influence of liquor is most destructive to property in their home and most abusive to her.

For six weeks after their marriage, Mrs. Gearhart says her husband was affectionate and considerate, but ever since, she declares, her life has been made miserable by his drunkenness. She also says that Dr. Gearhart admitted having consensual relations with another woman before their marriage, and that he drank to excess and in so admitting, she adds, he explained that he was afraid he would lose her if she discovered that he drank.

MAJ. SHUFELDT SEEKS HIS SECOND RELEASE

Asks Court for Freedom Following Incarceration at St. Elizabeth's.

Maj. Robert W. Shufeldt, retired officer of the army medical corps, who was released from St. Elizabeth's hospital July 14 by Justice Hoehling, in the District Supreme court, on a writ of habeas corpus, sued out another writ yesterday through Attorney George F. Curtis to get out again.

It appears from the petition for the writ that Maj. Shufeldt left his apartment at Randall Mansions recently to take a walk at the suggestion of his wife, and while out walking he was taken into custody by a policeman and sent back to the hospital. The major has never been adjudged insane, according to the records. His release July 14 came about because of a ruling by the court that retired army or naval officers could not be sent to any hospital without their consent and because the War Department lacked proper commitment papers.

He insists that he has done nothing for which he could be again committed to the hospital. Justice Siddons directed Dr. William A. White, the superintendent, to produce Maj. Shufeldt in court August 13 for a hearing.

DOUGHERTY INSPECTS POLICE FORCE HEADS

Commissioner Also Is Named to Boards of Public Institutions.

Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty yesterday held an official reception for the commanding officers of the police department. It was a record function for brevity. He made a speech exactly 75 seconds in length in which he told the bluecoats that they were a fine bunch of men and that they were stabilizers, the character of the citizenship of the District depending largely on their example and influence.

Then he turned to Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, who appeared to have prepared to listen to more lengthy remarks, and asked if he might now meet his fellow police officers. Each was introduced to him personally. The commissioner was in the room only three and a half minutes.

Mr. Dougherty was officially named yesterday as a member of the boards of trustees of the Columbia hospital and the National Training School for Boys, on which boards he serves ex officio.

The new commissioner plans to inspect all police stations and fire engine quarters, beginning next week.

G. P. O. EMPLOYEES ASK BETTER SERVICE ON W. R. & E. LINES

Petition Asserts Double Time Is Required for Run to Union Station.

ACTS OF OPERATORS ARE COMPLAINED OF Lincoln Park Transfer Is Suggested as Cause of Present Delay.

Ninety-five employees of the government printing office, who live near Lincoln Park, yesterday petitioned the public utilities commission to order the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to improve service between their place of employment and their homes. They specifically asked that two through cars be routed daily by way of the Union Station, one at 4:30 and one at 4:35 p. m. for their accommodation.

"Street car service from North Capitol street and Massachusetts avenue to Lincoln park has been getting steadily worse," said the petitioners in their communication. "It often requires half an hour to make the trip that should consume 15 minutes at most."

Protest Long Waits.

"A car marked 'First and E streets northeast,' which the company, no doubt, intends for accommodation of the 4:30 crowd arrives at our corner just a few seconds too soon to be of service. Its operators evidently take particular pains to speed up and get away before the government printing office employees can walk from the office to the car stop."

"This necessitates long waits, both at that spot and at the point of transfer, which makes it disagreeable, especially in hot or stormy weather."

"Taking into consideration the number of passengers bound for Lincoln park at this time of day, and in view of the short distance, we believe the transfer should be eliminated, and feel justified in insisting on through cars."

The petition was submitted to Capt. R. G. Klotz, engineer of the commission, and to the street car company for reports.

The last nation-wide record of civil service employees was made December 31, 1925, showed 548,077 employed. There were 917,760 employed throughout the country on Armistice day in 1918, and 438,077 on June 30, 1916.

OGLE IS EXONERATED OF RUM-CHASE SHOTS

U. S. Agent Takes the Blame, but Hesse Condemns Use of Weapons.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse yesterday officially absolved Detective Howard E. Ogle, of the Fourth precinct, of responsibility for the gunplay that attended an automobile chase of rum-runners Sunday night, but the police chief reiterated his condemnation of the terrorizing of the community with fast auto driving and shooting on the run by law officers.

Internal Revenue Agent J. W. Brown called on Maj. Hesse and took blame for the entire affair, saying that he did all the shooting that was done. Inspector L. J. Stoll submitted his second report on the incident, exonerating Ogle in participating in the shooting.

Three bullet holes were found in the revenue agent's car, indicating that the rum-runners had fired as they fled. Five shots were said to have been fired by the pursuers, all from Brown's gun.

MIDCITY CITIZENS WILL ASK HEARING ON MARKET PLANS

Support of Commerce Chamber Is to Be Sought for Convention Hall.

RETAILER AND FARMER ONLY WANTED THERE

Parking Space Plentiful and Site Can Be Expanded, It Is Pointed Out.

The special committee of the Midcity Citizens association, which was appointed to promote the plan for moving the farmers' market and eventually the Center market to Convention hall, yesterday decided to ask for a hearing before the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Should the hearing be granted, the committee will outline to the chamber the advantages of the plan and seek to enlist the chamber's support.

The committee made it known yesterday that it desires to have only the retailers and farmers of Center market move to Convention hall. The large packers and other wholesale houses, it was conceded, will have to locate in Southwest or Northeast Washington.

Market Recently Remodeled.

Convention Hall market has recently been remodeled and now has available 100 white-tiled stands as well as plenty of space for farmers' stands, according to a letter written by John S. Blick, president and general manager of the market, to Maj. Carey H. Brown, chairman of the National Capital park and planning commission.

Maj. Brown is chairman of a special committee appointed to make recommendations on a future site for Center market. A new site must be found, because space now being used will be taken over for the erection of government buildings.

In his letter to Maj. Brown, Mr. Blick pointed out that Convention hall is a much more convenient location from the standpoint of the housewife than any other that has been suggested.

Site Called Convenient.

There is plenty of parking space, he said, and the site is convenient to the New Jersey avenue and Seventh street lines of the Capital Traction Co., the Columbia line on Massachusetts avenue, the City and Suburban and the LeDroit Park lines on Fifth street.

It would be an easy matter to expand the market, Mr. Blick said, pointing out that the property in this area consists mainly of two-story frame buildings and shacks that could be purchased at reasonable prices. The B & O railroad, he said, is within a 5-minute drive of the market, and the Pennsylvania railroad is within a 10-minute drive.

The committee decided yesterday that if Center market is moved to Convention hall, the name "Center market" would be substituted for "Convention Hall market."
